More Than 250,000

Thunderous Welcome For America's President

TEHRAN (AP) — President Nixon arrived in Iran's capital today to a thunderous welcome by thousands of citizens and began the first of his discussions with the shah on regional and world issues.

Iranian officials said 250,000 persons lined the streets to welcome the President for his overnight visit and some American observers said the crowd might be as large as 400,000. The throngs were friendly, waving flags and shouting "welcome" in their native tongue.

The President and Mrs. Nixon were greeted at Tehran's Mehrabad Airport by the 52-year-old monarch and Empress Farah after a flight from Kiev, the Nixons' last stop in the Soviet Union following a week of summit talks between the President and Kremlin leaders.

Massive security precautions were taken against attacks by urban guerrillas and other dissident Iranians who were told by Baghdad broadcasts to disrupt the visit.

Among the topics expected to be discussed during the five hours of talks between the two leaders were the future of the Indian Ocean and the Persian Gulf area, which holds 60 per cent of the world's known oil reserves.

The Shah would like to see the United States and Soviet Union agree to let Iran act as the policeman of the area without big power interference. Failing that, the Shah was expected to seek assurance of undiminished U.S. support. The Soviet government's recent friendship treaties with India and the hostile regime in neighboring Iraq have increased Iran's sense of isolation, and it is suspicious of Moscow's intentions in the Gulf.

Wearing a gray suit, white shirt and blue and gray tie, the President looked tried but smiled as he said goodbye at the Kiev airport to President Alexander Lyashko of the Ukraine and other officials.

The weather was clear and balmy as the President and Mrs. Nixon boarded Air Force One after an overnight stop in Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

"It's such a lovely day, I'd like to stay another week," Nixon told Lyashko's wife and Mrs. Vladimir Scherbitasky, wife of the Ukrainian Communist party chief, as they prepared to leave for the airport.

"Why not?" Mrs. Lyashko replied.

"We'll get fired," said Mrs. Nixon with a smile.

The President commented: "I think I'd get in a little trouble at home if I didn't go."

A few hours after the arrival in Kiev, presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger told newsmen that Nixon and the Soviet leaders reached no secret agreements on Vietnam or any other controversial questions.

"This is not the way these things happen," the President's assistant for national security affairs said.

Questioned closely about Nixon's extensive talks in Moscow about Vietnam, Kissinger said: "I just do not want to speculate about what the results may be."

He said there had been too many predictions about the war in the past and he would prefer to await concrete developments.

One big question, said Kissinger, is how Hanoi will view Nixon's summit talk. Asked if American negotiators suffered any disappointments, the Nixon adviser said they got more or less what they expected and hoped for "give or take 10 per cent."

Kissinger added that the summit had been so carefully prepared that each side knew pretty much what to expect. He said the two governments agreed in advance: "Don't let's surprise each other at the summit."

The Nixons' flight from Moscow to the Ukrainian capital was delayed nearly an hour when the Soviet jetliner provided for them developed engine trouble on the ground. They switched to another Ilyushin 62.

U.S. Bombers Wreck Huge Enemy Railyard

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers raided one of North Vietnam's biggest railroad yards Monday, leaving the yards on the outskirts of Haiphong engulfed in explosions and flames, and wrecked 16 bridges across the country, the U.S. Command announced today. One Marine A6 jet from the carrier Coral Sea was shot down, but the two fliers nursed it out to sea, and a helicopter pulled them out of the water.

The strikes against the Uong Bi railroad yard 10 miles northeast of the port city were the first there in the stepped up bombing of North Vietnam which began April 6.

The yard reportedly serviced North Vietnam's entire railroad system, including the northwest and northeast lines to China.

Meanwhile, a task force of three cruisers and two destroyers ranged up and down the coast, shelling targets from 10 miles north of the demilitarized zone to within 29 miles of Haiphong.

In the ground war, there were reports of the first withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam since they started their big offensive two months ago.

U.S. military sources said elements of two North Vietnamese divisions had pulled back into Cambodia from An Loc, the besieged provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon. Both were reported badly battered by B52 bomb strikes.

The enemy pressure on An Loc itself has eased, but North Vietnamese forces have intensified shelling along Highway 13 south of the devastated town and are keeping a relief column from getting through.

Field reports said the enemy gunners on Monday slammed 2,400 rocket and mortar shells into three South Vietnamese positions along the highway two to 10 miles south of An Loc. Twenty South Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed and 109 wounded.

Elsewhere, fighting broke out for the first time in several weeks in southernmost Cambodia, just across the border from the western Mekong Delta in South Vietnam. South Vietnamese rangers spearheaded by an armored column clashed with North Vietnamese forces while on a drive to block infiltration into the delta.

'Arnold the Porker' Sets Press Session

Arnold the Pig is coming to town.

What's more, he's scheduled to be married — fortunately to the porker of his choice. The selection Arnold makes will be crowned "Piggy-72" by Missouri's Lt. Gov. William Morris. All of that will take place in West Plains, but first Arnold is scheduled to have a news conference in Sedalia at 3:50 p.m. Wednesday.

Arnold

According to Chuck Lawrence, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce, tentative plans call for making the famous Arnold an honorary member of the Chamber. Lawrence admitted, however, that he hadn't received official approval from his board of directors on that one yet.

Since Arnold, one of the stars of the television series "Green Acres," has something of a speech problem, Gene Thompson, director of marketing for the Missouri Department of Agriculture, will lend a helping hand at the news conference here.

Arnold's stop in Sedalia and his featured appearance and wedding in West Plains are all part of a brain storm of Dexter Davis, Missouri commissioner of agriculture. Davis said his idea was inspired by the "Hogs Are Beautiful" program in order to make the National Feeder Pig Show in West Plains Thursday an outstanding attraction.

After Arnold does his thing in Sedalia, he plans to do a little more in West Plains. The folks there have scheduled what was called in one news release an "unusual hillbilly wedding ceremony . . . that may rock pigdom off its heels."

He will head for that big pigpen in West Plains with only one thing to occupy his attention. However, one source in West Plains told The Democrat-Capital "the newly united couple will take a few minutes prior to leaving on their honeymoon to have keepsake photos taken — proving truly that 'pigs are prettier.'"

The wedding ceremony itself will be conducted by T. Euel Liner, Lubbock, Tex., president of the National Pork Producers Council, who said he was performing the ceremony under threat of bodily harm.

Arnold's appearance in Missouri, unusual as it is, may be blamed on Davis, Jay Sommers, producer of "Green Acres;" Lloyd Downard, Frontier Tower Life Insurance Co., financial sponsor; LeRoy Wollmer, and Rolland "Pig" Paul, Willow Springs, general manager of the show in West Plains.

Innocent Plea Again By Bremer

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Arthur H. Bremer pleaded innocent today to state charges in connection with the shooting of Gov. George C. Wallace and the wounding of three other persons.

Bremer was taken from Baltimore County Jail before dawn and brought under heavy guard to the Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

Bremer had pleaded innocent to federal charges last Wednesday.

The 21-year old Milwaukee man was indicted last Tuesday on six counts for each of the four persons injured. He was charged with attempted murder, assault and battery, assault with intent to murder, assault with intent to maim and two violations of state gun control laws.

The injured, in addition to Wallace, were Alabama State Trooper Capt. E.C. Dothard, Secret Service agent Nicholas Zarvos, and Dora Thompson, a Wallace campaign worker from Alabama.

The shootings took place at a Wallace campaign rally at a Laurel, Md. shopping center May 15.

Wallace remains hospitalized in a Silver Spring, Md., hospital, where doctors say his condition is slowly improving.

Bremer's only response during the 15-minute arraignment was an affirmative reply when asked if he had received copies of the indictments.

The unemployed busboy's plea of innocent was formally entered by the court, a procedure common in the county.

Sheriff's Officers Find Murder Gun

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — A 9mm German lugar, believed to be the weapon used in the murder of an Independence teen-ager here last Wednesday, was found by Benton County sheriff's officers Monday.

Officers said they found the pistol in a wooded area about eight miles southeast of where Glenn Dale Hyatt, 18, was found shot to death Wednesday.

Hyatt's body was found at 2:10 p.m. about 11 miles southeast of here on Route VV by Doyle Hart Edwards, who was traveling to Springfield with his wife.

Two Independence youths, both 16, are being held in the Benton County jail in connection with the shooting. Benton County Sheriff Robert Breshears said one of the youths signed a statement last week and agreed to show where the gun used in the slaying was thrown away.

A hearing will be held June 12 to determine whether the two will be tried as adults or juveniles.

Papers in Russia Spotlight Summit

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's major newspapers published the text today of the statement of principles to guide American-Soviet relations signed Monday by President Nixon and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Most papers front-paged photographs of the signing in the Kremlin.

The government daily, Izvestia, normally an afternoon newspaper, skipped Monday's edition in order to come out this morning with coverage of the signing and of Nixon's departure from Moscow.

"Reports of the Soviet-American summit agreements are the major items of the press, radio and television all over the world," the Communist party daily, Pravda, said above a roundup of world press comment on the just-concluded summit talks.

"These agreements are in the interests of universal peace and security, the interests of all peoples."

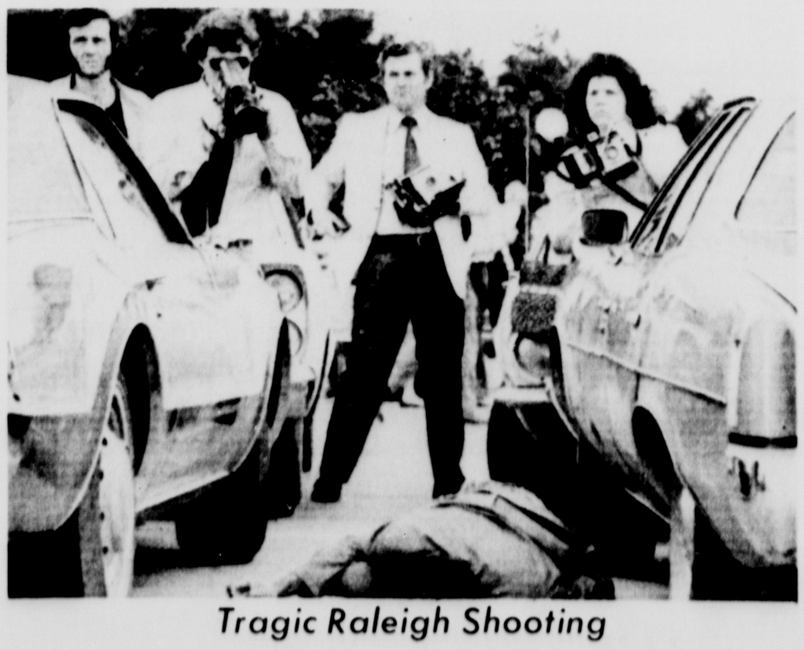
Typical headlines were: "An Example of Political Realism," "Good Prospects for Consolidation of Peace," "In the Interests of the Peoples of the World." The controlled press gave no lengthy analysis of the agreements and their expected results but it continued its heavy coverage of the Nixon visit.

In an effort to show that the summit agreements "are supported by the entire Soviet people," Pravda and other newspapers published "letters that Soviet people are sending to the editorial offices in ardent approval of the Soviet-American talks."

"In the name of all the workers of our plant I want to say thank you to our native Communist party," said a typical letter in the orchestrated chorus, this one signed by M. Shevtsov, party secretary at the Karachardovsky Mechanical Plant in Moscow.

Izvestia also carried the text of the agreement on the limitation of strategic arms, published by most other papers over the weekend. And it carried a brief report from New York that U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, in compliance with the agreement, had ordered a halt to construction of an antiballistic missile base in Montana.

Say Senator Not Shooting Target



Tragic Raleigh Shooting

The body of a gunman who shot and killed three persons and wounded as many as eight others at a Raleigh, N.C., shopping center where Sen. B. Everett Jordan was campaigning, lies in a parking lot Monday, a pistol and rifle near his body. Police said the gunman, Harvey McLeod, shot himself after the outburst. (UPI)

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Police say Sen. B. Everett Jordan apparently was not the target of a young gunman who killed three persons and wounded eight others before taking his own life at a shopping center where the senator was campaigning.

The gunman "just broke out his gun and started shooting, first one way and then another," Police Chief Robert Goodwin said. "We don't know why he was there." A witness, Bruce Bland of Raleigh, said the gunman was "aiming at anything that moved."

Police Capt. C.H. Haswell said he doubted Jordan was the target because so many people were shot.

Jordan, a Democrat on an unannounced handshaking tour, was rushed into an optometrist's office when the rifle shots rang out Monday among hundreds of holiday shoppers at North Hills Shopping Center.

Jordan was not hurt, but his news secretary, Wes Hayden, was shot in the back. Hayden was reported in serious condition at a hospital.

Jordan, 75, said, "I have no reason to believe anyone would try to kill me." He and his opponent in the Democratic primary runoff, U.S. Rep. Nick Galifianakis of Durham, had declined protection offered by state authorities after the shooting of Gov. George C. Wallace in Maryland two weeks ago.

For Needy Families

High Court Okays Assistance Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today approved the method used by Texas and 18 other states to reduce assistance to needy families with some outside income.

The vote was 5-4 with the four Nixon administration appointees and Justice Byron R. White in the majority. The four dissenters said the cut system violated federal welfare law.

At the same time, the court rejected claims Texas was discriminating against blacks and chicanos and that states should not apply larger percentage cuts to families with dependent children than to the blind and the aged.

The vote on these points was 6-3.

Said Justice William Rehnquist for the majority, "It is not irrational for the state to believe that the young are more adaptable than the sick and the elderly, especially because the latter have less hope of improving their situation in the years remaining to them."

Justice William O. Douglas dissenting, said Texas had engaged in "rank discrimination" against blacks and chicanos and had violated the intent of Congress by denying nearly 2,500 needy families relief.

In other actions today, the court:

—Agreed to rule on the power of grand juries to force witnesses to give samples of their voices and handwriting.

—Rejected an appeal by California to review the state supreme court decision outlawing the death penalty.

—Upheld New York's loyalty oath for public school teachers against claims of a discharged teacher that it infringes on the religious beliefs of Quakers.

—Turned aside an appeal by Philadelphia officials and declined to review a ruling that the Nixon administration has drastically and illegally reduced the role of slum residents in guiding Model Cities programs.

Ann Landers

Mother Must Learn To Live Own Life

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the 38-year-old mother who confessed that she felt a slight tug of attraction for her daughter's 18-year-old boyfriend: No, you're not nuts, honey. Furthermore, I'll bet millions of women who read that column identified with you — but they wouldn't dare admit it, not even to themselves.

Our four daughters were teen-agers at the same time. I had small crushes on several of the boys who came to the house and it was harmless fun. Let's face it, a woman's romantic fantasies are stronger than a man's — and they last longer. By the time a husband approaches his late 30's, the fire had died down and married sex is pretty routine. What could be more natural then a mother reliving the excitement of young love through her daughter?

I say enjoy your secret thoughts and have a good laugh at yourself. Of course it's ridiculous, but there is no harm so long as you are the only one who is laughing. — Me, Too, In Anchorage.

Dear Anc: The trick is to know it's ridiculous and to keep it funny. This is not so easy to do if the young boys sense you find them attractive, Mrs. Robinson. The REAL danger lies in the possibility that a perceptive daughter might get the idea you are competing with her. A well-balanced, middle-aged woman should be involved in living her own life. There is something quite sad about a mother who is reduced to seeking vicarious thrills by fantasizing about her daughter's boyfriends.

Dear Ann Landers: Several days ago a bus hit our car. We had to get two estimates for repairs to satisfy the insurance company. After waiting a week for my husband to fill out the forms, he finally exploded at the dinner table and said he hasn't filled out a form in ten years, hated to fill out forms, and was going to ask his boss's secretary to do it for him.

I told him it was a "family" job and if he didn't want to do it, I'd be happy to. He gave me a curt answer that made it quite clear that he didn't think I had enough brains to fill out the form properly. One word led to another and before I knew it we were having a big fight. I have my personal reasons for not wanting my husband to become involved in any projects with his boss's secretary. I told him so — in unmistakable language. He called me "childish," "insanely jealous" and a few other things.

Do you feel a wife has the right to protect her marriage against what she considers "dangerous elements?" I'd like your advice. — Ambridge, Pa.

Dear Am: A wife does indeed have the right to protect her marriage against "dangerous elements," but your approach was not protective, it was destructive.

The sure way to drive a husband into the arms of another woman is by (a) constantly checking on him, (b) bombarding him with accusations, and (c) letting him know you don't trust him worth a darn.

A husband has a way of living up (or down) to a wife's opinion of him. Some men figure so long as they have the name they might as well have the game, and they go ahead and get into mischief they never would have thought of on their own.

Believe Labor Unions Have Become Too Strong

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey conducted for an organization representing a cross-section of American industry shows 55 per cent of the general public believes labor unions have grown too powerful and 68 per cent believe recent strikes and labor troubles "have seriously hurt the country."

Opinion Research Corp., Princeton, N.J., has been making the surveys annually since December 1966 for the Labor Law Study Committee, which was formed to study the effect of labor laws on collective bargaining and to recommend changes it feels are necessary.

The latest survey was made between Nov. 15 and Dec. 6 last year. It consisted of 2,003 interviews among the adult population.

On the subject "Unions today have grown too powerful. I would like to see their power reduced," in addition to the general public's 55 per cent approval of the statement, 24 per cent said union power is about right, 14 per cent said unions are not strong enough and 7 per cent had no opinion.

By age groups, the "too powerful" vote was 50 per cent among those 18 to 29 years; 56 per cent among those 30 to 39 years; 57 per cent among the 40-49 group; 60 per cent among the 50-59 group, and 56 per cent among those over 60. Among union members themselves, 41 per cent said unions have too much power. For members of union families the figure was 50 per cent and for nonunion families it was 60 per cent.

On the question "In your opinion, have recent strikes and labor trouble seriously hurt the country as a whole, or haven't they had that much effect?" the general public's 68 per cent vote saying "seriously hurt" was accompanied by 20 per cent who said they had not had that much effect and 12 per cent without an opinion.

The 68 per cent figure represented an increase of 12 per cent since the 1967 survey and a 4 per cent increase since 1970.

On the question of government intervention in strikes, 65 per cent of the general public in the poll favored intervention, compared to 57 per cent a year earlier. Twenty-three per cent were against intervention and 12 per cent had no opinion. Among union members 53 per cent favored intervention, compared with 50 per cent in 1970.

Corps Reports On Dam Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers says the West Virginia dam that collapsed last February, killing at least 118 persons, was doomed from the start. A Senate subcommittee opens hearings today on the disaster.

The Engineers released a report Monday saying the dam "should never have been built."

The report spread the blame for the disaster among the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the State of West Virginia, and the Buffalo Coal Co. which built the structure. All three, the report said, appear to have legal responsibilities over the safe construction and inspection of a dam.

Said the Corps report: "The consequent 'let-George-do-it' attitude resulted in tragedy."

The Senate subcommittee scheduled two days of testimony by Bureau, state and company officials, along with law-enforcement and National Guard spokesmen, and survivors of the tragedy.

On the eve of the hearings, the subcommittee released the Corps report on the collapse of the Buffalo Mining Co. Dam No. 3, on the Middle Fork of Buffalo Creek.

The Corps is preparing a second report surveying similar waste-pile dams in West Virginia.

When Dam No. 3 collapsed last Feb. 26 after three days of rain it sent a 20-foot wall of water through the Buffalo Valley, wiping out the towns of Saunders and Lorado and spreading havoc for 17 miles downstream.

Government and company officials called it an act of God.

But the Corps report said the dam was so basically unsafe that only a "happy accident" of nature could have prevented its collapse.

In fact, the Corps said, water seepage had been steadily undermining the dam's already-poor foundation and there was visible evidence of this steady weakening for a year before the final breakdown.

The Corps said adequate inspection would have disclosed this deterioration.

Library Marking Birthday

BOSTON (AP) — The John F. Kennedy Library is marking what would have been the 55th birthday of the late president with a exhibit of 46 photographs and 28 mementoes from the collection that it has in storage.

The display opens today in the lobby of the Kennedy federal building. Kennedy was born 55 years ago Monday.

David Powers, a Kennedy White House aide who is acting curator of the library, said the exhibit was prepared because "birthdays were something special to him."

The display items have been taken from the 62,000 photographs and more than 10,000 museum objects the library has stored in suburban Waltham until a permanent building is ready.

In suburban Brookline Monday, more than 300 persons visited Kennedy's birthplace.

The National Park Service says more than 100,000 visitors come annually to the modest, nine-room house that was the Kennedy family's home from 1914 to 1920.

Civilians Can't Escape Viet Conflict Tragedy

KONTUM, Vietnam (AP) — Two American soldiers and two Vietnamese stand at the yawning rear ramp of the helicopter, their rifles at the ready. They make threatening gestures at the crowd outside, an anxious mob of women with children slung under their arms, soldiers waving official papers, old men with the lines of worry and age in their faces.

The guards shout but cannot be heard over the roar of the big jet engines.

Despite the searing exhaust and gale-force winds of the rotor downdraft, the mob presses closer. The ramp is raised to prevent them from leaping aboard.

The guards' job is not pleasant but necessary. Only wounded soldiers and Americans are allowed aboard.

The chopper taxis a few yards to get away from the crowd. Before the people can catch up, an army ambulance swings behind it and backs up to the ramp, which descends again.

The wounded come aboard, first two men on stretchers that are shoved to the front of the cabin. One grimaces in pain, the other appears to be unconscious. Then the others—a young man in the arms of a boy, a plasma bottle dangling near his weary brown face; four soldiers with bandages on their heads, throats and chests; a girl with red-stained gauze holding her hand and arm together.

Ramp up.

Two American soldiers swing up and climb aboard. They lived in Kontum once but now go there only in the daylight to guide in the helicopters. They grab a ride out each night on the last bird to Pleiku.

The engines accelerate. A cloud of dust and debris envelops the machine, driving the crowd back as the big Chinook lumbers into the air and turns south for Pleiku.

Each day is the same now. Several hundred townspeople wait in the half finished soccer stadium downtown, hoping one of the diminishing number of helicopters will somehow open to them.

"No," the American sergeant explains to all who come begging. "Only Americans and wounded Vietnamese. Those are my orders."

Thoughts Are Shared By Widows

By MARY LU ZUBER
Houston Chronicle Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "If only I had someone to talk with, someone who understands," pleads a widow.

"It's so lonely," adds another.

"Doctors load you with tranquilizers and tell you you'll be all right. That doesn't help."

"You're a fifth wheel. Your friends are nice but. . . . You're just alone."

These are widows talking, eagerly sharing experiences and problems, reaching out to help others and to be helped.

In only a few minutes of conversation, it's apparent one of their biggest troubles is loneliness. But these women are doing something about that loneliness and other problems widows face. They answered a call to be volunteers with Widowed Inc., a service organization which aims to help people adjust when they lose a mate.

Shirley Wolfer, executive director who lost her husband 19 months ago, started Widowed, Inc., in Houston after discovering the organization on a trip to Boston. A board of directors was formed and a call for volunteers brought out more than 50 persons at the organizational meeting.

Margaret Cox, Addie Goldman, Margaret Rosenthall and Mary K. Wintringham know the traumas of being widowed and they know one of the greatest needs is someone to talk with.

Listen to them:

"I have no family here, no one," says Mrs. Cox. "My husband and I were in the laundry business and we sold it before he died. I don't want to go back into that. Yet I don't have any experience in anything else."

"I'd never worked before. I had done volunteer work and some of the offices offered me jobs. I nearly fainted when I heard the salary. It was so little," says Mrs. Goldman. "Luckily I went into a good field, real estate."

"A widow often thinks she can live a lot more cheaply, but the cost of living without your husband doesn't drop in proportion to the loss of his income," says Mrs. Rosenthall.

Since finances are a big problem to many widows, one aim of Widowed, Inc. is to guide persons to the proper counseling in financial and legal matters.

"I lost some of my credit cards because I was honest and told the companies my husband had died. They sent me applications for a new card and when they saw I had no job, they didn't give me one," Mrs. Wolfer says.

"You're thrown out of society. You can't go out like you used to. You're a prisoner in your home. People tell you to take a trip. Well whom are you going with?" says Mrs. Goldman.

"Go with another widow," answers Mrs. Rosenthall.

"The real answer is that you have to change your lifestyle," says Mrs. Goldman.

What Widowed, Inc., hopes to say by its actions is, "you're not alone in your feelings. Thousands of others are just like you."

Summer Designs

Designs from the Vera Maxwell Summer '72 collection include the summer-to-fall transition suit at right with a totally elegant look in a tone-on-tone taupes. The skirt is permanently pleated acetate with a long torso bodice of print cotton challis. The loose, lightweight jacket is of checked wild silk. The return of the romantic is typified at left in a beautiful dress that is as light and lovely as a garden, made of sheer cotton fabric. (NEA)

Class Keynotes Collection

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Vera Maxwell, the designer who has never stooped to kookiness in spite of its popularity over the past few years, has proved that flattering lines and handsome fabrics will always be the basis of good fashion.

Throughout the "clown era" she stayed in business and had a devoted following without ever compromising beauty and good taste in her fashions. Now today, even the way-out designers are turning out classic fashions, aware of the fact that women are tired of climbing into costumes instead of clothes for every occasion from office to opera.

There is a feeling of infectious light heartedness about the Vera Maxwell summer collection. Swirls of pleats are one highlight.

There's a navy nylon jersey dress with navy print top, red print sash and the skirt is six yards of fine accordion pleating.

Another costume is in subtle tones of taupe—knife-pleated skirt, long-waisted bodice of paisley cotton challis and topped with a loose jacket of checked wild silk.

In the long look, with more tailored pleating, is a white Arnel jersey skirt and sleeveless overblouse with touches of black at the bottom and a boy's four-in-hand tie — straight out of the '30s.

The famous Maxwell "decorator dresses" turn up, too — easy-shaped in French Fibranne, with banding or pockets of beautiful Hungarian embroidery. And the return of the shirtwaist dress is well-represented in Liberty of London floral lawn.

Pure cotton, the most comfortable summer fabric, is used in short and long dresses in flowers or checks in a waffled texture.

All told it's a graceful collection for women who want to be looked at because they look pretty—not grotesque.

Dampened Cotton Keeps Paste Moist

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I used to get infuriated with library paste that dried in jars, until a retired schoolteacher told me I should dampen a bit of cotton cloth, keep it inside the paste jar and it would stay moist for weeks. The rag should be rinsed out occasionally so the paste will not develop a sour smell. — MRS. L. N.

DEAR GIRLS — This Pointer brought to mind a somewhat similar one published years ago and which I have used constantly. Perhaps some of you remember the suggestion for keeping an aluminum tea ball filled with damp cotton in the cookie jar so cookies do not get hard. This is one of my personal favorites. — POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to make my own window shades out of burlap or similar yard goods and wonder if the readers could give me some ideas on how this is done. — KAREN

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those people who run over dogs and cats and then just drive on, leaving the animal in the road. The least they could do would be to stop and move the animal off the road so it would not be struck again.

Another Peeve is with those people who let their cats run loose all the time. There is one in our neighborhood that hunts mice and, after killing them, brings them into our yard. He also walks all over our car at night, leaving his paw prints on the hood. If cat owners do not want to take care of their pets they should find another home for them. — BARBARA

DEAR POLLY — I have good news for Norma who has trouble with the feet in her children's sleepers. If they do not have elastic at the ankles, she can sew a strip of tape around each ankle and then run elastic through it. Also the foot portion can be shortened by making a new seam as large as needed inside the old one. — MARJ

DEAR POLLY — I seldom used my old cothes drying rack so decided to make some use of it. I needed trellises for my climbing roses and clematis so I took the spokes out of the rack, painted the sides and set it up. The holes where the spokes went now hold strings for tying the plants as they creep up. This works perfectly. I sawed the spokes in half and added long laths at the ends (ladder fashion) and have another trellis. — EMMA

Wallace Gaining Slowly

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace is improving slowly, his doctors say, and has his choice of the hospital menu.

The Alabama chief executive's abdominal wound, doctors attending Wallace said in a daily medical briefing Monday, shows less drainage of abscess daily.

They said the governor's condition continued to improve slowly and gradually.

Charles Snider, Wallace's national campaign officer, said he and the governor's son, George Jr., 20, would go to appeal for votes in the California and New Mexico primaries.

Snider quoted Wallace as saying the governor wishes that Americans will quickly forget that he has been shot.

Following a 45-minute meeting with the governor, Snider said Wallace reiterated his intention to be at the Democratic National Convention in Miami in July. He said doctors assured him that the Alabama chief executive would be able to attend the convention in five weeks.

Although Wallace has indicated he is totally committed to securing the Democratic presidential nomination, Snider said, he did not flatly rule out a third-party candidacy if Wallace is not the Democrats' choice in Miami.

Besides Snider, the governor also was visited by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, brother of two assassinated politicians.

Kennedy, who recalled that after a 1964 airplane crash doctors told him he probably would be permanently paralyzed, encouraged Wallace never to give up the hope of walking again.

Police Investigate Incidents of Theft

Three thefts were reported to Sedalia police Monday.

J. W. Greer, 602 West Sixth, told police that tools valued at $100, clothes and flowers and pots were stolen from his residence some time last week. Police reported there were no signs of forcible entry.

Linda Rodewald, 1008 South Mildred, reported a box of coins valued at $150 to $200 were taken from her residence. Police reported there were no signs of forcible entry in that incident.

Bill Burkholder, co-owner of Sedalia Structural Steel Inc., 104 South Engineer, reported a break-in at the company Sunday night or early Monday morning. Police reported a window was broken to gain entry. A soft drink machine and a candy machine were pried open and an unknown amount of money was taken from each machine.

Federal Assistance Cut Causes Concern

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CORDER — Michael W. Cordes, director of the Missouri Valley Economic Development Department, which serves Pettis County, among others, reported in a thesis he completed recently that federal funds were being withdrawn for his program and that local support would be required in order to continue operation.

After Aug. 30, he said, federal assistance will stop and his 56-page report outlines some of the activities of his department and the needs of the six counties it serves.

Cordes explained that the department was concerned with creating job opportunities in the six-county area through talking with existing employers in an attempt to solve the present problem, and coordinating efforts with city and county agencies in securing new industry.

Essentially, Cordes is recommending four alternate methods of financing the program:

- "Annual contributions from local industrial corporations, the size of the contribution being proportioned to the size of the community supporting the corporation;
- "Weekly contributions from each city government in the six-county area, the amount of the contribution again proportional to the population of the cities;
- "Monthly contributions of $100 from each county court; and
- "Membership dues paid by interested businesses and individuals residing in the six-county Missouri Valley Region."

Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones said Tuesday he felt it would be duplication for Sedalia to support the MVEDD since the city already has an active Department of Industrial Development. He emphasized that he had not seen Cordes' study, but that he felt Sedalia was probably unique in the six-county area in having its own industrial development program.

Pettis County Presiding Court Judge B. A. Fischer said he was not familiar with the study and refused to comment on it until he saw it.

Cordes' proposed budget, attached to the thesis, indicates that $49,660 would be required to run the department during fiscal 1972. The sum is based, the report says, on the actual 1971 budget.

Besides Pettis, Cordes' department serves Ray, Saline, Carroll, Chariton and Lafayette Counties.

According to Cordes, the area needs to adopt what he terms a "fourth secondary objective: assist local retail commercial firms in retaining a greater share of the wealth generated in the six-county area."

In order to do this, his report says, "specific methods and techniques designed to accomplish this objective need to be developed and written into the program."

A cover letter on the thesis received by the Pettis County Court said that judges of the court would be "called on in June to make a decision as to whether the operation should be continued or not in the six-county area." Similar letters and copies of the thesis were apparently distributed to area businesses.

Dismiss Appeal In Threat Case

Circuit Judge Frank Meyer dismissed the appeal motion of Robert Brauer, 17, Route 2, in Pettis County Circuit Court Tuesday and Brauer began serving a six-month sentence in the Pettis County jail, Robert Liston, Brauer's attorney, said Tuesday.

Brauer was sentenced to the jail term and fined $100 and costs Thursday by Magistrate Judge Frank Armstrong after Armstrong found Brauer guilty of a charge of conveying false information regarding a destructive substance.

Brauer was arrested April 25 by Sedalia police in connection with a bomb threat telephone call made to Smith-Cotton High School.

Liston said he filed an application for the defendant that the appeal motion be dismissed. Judge Meyer dismissed the appeal and the case was sent back to Magistrate Court.

Announce Draft Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime group draft candidates with lottery numbers 1 through 50 will be inducted during July, Selective Service announced today. A total of 7,200 will be called up.

This raised the callup lottery ceiling from Nos. 1 through 35 set for the 9,000 man callup for June.

The July call will bring the total called so far in 1972 to 22,200. The Defense Department has announced that 50,000 men will be drafted this year, roughly half the 98,000 drafted last year.

Acting Draft Director Byron Pepitone's instructions to state headquarters and local boards affects primarily men who are in the first priority selection group born in 1952 who are classified 1A, 1AO and 1O.

A 1A is a man available for military service. A 1AO is a conscientious objector willing to go into the military for non-combat duty. A 1O is a conscientious objector who must serve compensating duty in a civilian role.

Men who are in this group who are going to summer school and receive induction orders may have their induction postponed until the end of the summer session if the session runs beyond their induction date.

The August draft call is expected to be higher than the 7,200 July total—about the same as the 9,000 June callup, Selective Service said. How high this will push the lottery callup ceiling will be announced in mid-June.

The July induction orders will be mailed beginning June 1, Selective Service said, since men must be given at least 30 days' notice of their induction.

In addition to those born in 1952, a small number of older men will be issued orders for July inductions. These are men who recently lost deferments or whose initial postponements of induction expire during the month under recently revised draft regulations.

All those in the prime group with a number up to 50 not deferred or exempted will be called under the new system of a uniform national call. Under this, all eligible registrants with the same lottery numbers are issued orders to report in the same time period regardless of locations in the country.

Commander Awarded In Field

KONTUM, Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu flew into Kontum under fire today to pin a star on the field commander defending the provincial capital in the central highlands.

Thieu came in a light observation helicopter that flew in at rooftop level and put down at the 23rd Division headquarters a few hundred yards from North Vietnamese positions.

Several rounds of artillery landed in the compound just before the president arrived and during his 25-minute stay.

Thieu came to promote Col. Ly Tong Ba to brigadier general. He commands the 23rd Division, which has been fighting inside Kontum since the city's defenses were breached last Thursday.

It was understood that one reason for Thieu's visit was to encourage Ba to take more aggressive action to rout the enemy forces holding on in the northern and southeastern sectors of the city. One source said the promotion would also make clear Ba's authority over other colonels working with him.

Ba was surprised by Thieu's arrival and by his spot promotion.

False Fire Call

Firemen were called to the Fairview Nursing Home, 1714 West 16th, at 5:55 a.m. Tuesday when the fire alarm at the home accidentally went off.

An employe at the home said a burned-out part in the alarm itself triggered the malfunction.

Four Are Killed In Delta Crash

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Three pilots and an inspector from the Federal Aviation Administration were killed today when a Delta Airlines DC9 jet on a training flight crashed and burned at Greater Southwest International Airport.

Tarrant County Medical examiner Feliks Cwozdz said the pilots and the FAA inspector, the only persons aboard, were trapped and died inside the burning plane.

A policeman who witnessed the crash said the plane hit the ground tail first and then skidded about half a mile as it burst into flames.

Delta Airlines officials said the plane was on a routine check flight when it crashed.

Landmark Pollution Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge ruled today the government must protect existing clean air by requiring state antipollution plans to forbid its deterioration.

District Judge John H. Pratt, hearing a suit brought by the Sierra Club and other environment groups, asked government and environmentalist lawyers to suggest an appropriate order which he could issue immediately to the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Pratt indicated he would allow the administrator to approve state anti-pollution plans or parts of plans designed to meet federal standards for protecting human health and the environment.

But he also said he will require the administrator to obtain additional state plans, where necessary, to protect air whose quality is now higher than the federal standards.

The government attorneys said they will file an immediate appeal of the decision.

They said such an order would require a lengthy review of all state implementation plans now awaiting approval by EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, who was under a legal deadline to approve or disapprove them by Wednesday.

If so, the decision could delay application of the main federal program against air pollution, an outcome exactly opposite to the goals of the environment groups who filed the suit.

Their attorney, Bruce J. Terris told the court he would like Ruckelshaus to approve as much as possible of the plans as quickly as he can and put them into effect.

But the order would, on the other hand, establish a significant victory for the environment groups by making it clear that "nondegredation"—the protection of existing purity in the environment—is a basic part of the clean air laws.

Lobbying Switch Urged

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the nation's biggest union of public workers urged leaders of his 550,000-member organization today to switch their lobbying emphasis from the states to Congress in an effort to win a national labor law covering state, county and city employes.

"The big crap game is now in the nation's capital," said Jerry Wurf, head of the AFL-CIO American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Wurf told some 1,500 delegates to the union's convention that membership in public employe unions is growing by leaps and bounds despite state laws that frequently discourage unions and sometimes send their leaders to jail for striking.

"All the laws being passed in all the states are lousy," Wurf said.

Some states have eased their laws against unions as a result of union pressure, "but the best law in these United States is an unfair law, tilted in favor of employers," he said.

"The only way we will get justice is when we get a national law," he said. "State laws still give the upper hand to the employer."

The union has been lobbying in Congress for a bill that would require states and their political subdivisions to recognize and bargain with unions.

Crash Impact Tragic

DULAC, La. (AP) — Officials say a helicopter slammed to earth upside down with such force that it was almost buried in the soft mud of a Louisiana swamp. The pilot and 10 passengers died.

The craft, owned by Petroleum Helicopters Corp. of Lafayette, was carrying workmen to their jobs on an offshore oil rig when it crashed Monday about 60 miles southwest of New Orleans.

The pilot was identified as Fred Robarge, 37, of Lafayette.

The other victims were employes of the Penrod Drilling Co. of Lafayette. The firm declined to release their identities until all relatives had been notified.

The scene of the crash was accessable only by other helicopters, swamp buggies or air boats—flat-bottomed boats that are propelled along the surface of the water and swamp grass by airplane propellers.

The crash was about four miles south of Dulac, a tiny community populated by fishermen and offshore oil rig workers. Officials said the cause of the crash was unknown.

At Crash Scene

Terrebonne Parish Sheriff's Deputies and Coroner's Department workers pull one of the 11 victims of a helicopter crash Monday from the marshy land along Bayou Grand Caillou near Dulac, La., after a drag line pulled the wreckage from their bodies. The pilot and his ten passengers were en route to an offshore oil drilling platform. (UPI)

Brezhnev's Cadillac The Best

DETROIT (AP) — Cadillac says practically every optional item it offers was included on the car that President Nixon presented to Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Extras on the black, front-wheel-drive Eldorado included an AM-FM stereo radio, tape deck, tinted glass and a special air horn.

"About the only item added specifically for overseas was a kilo speedometer, rather than the regular-type speedometer found in American cars," a Cadillac spokesman said.

He said the car came off the assembly line May 16 and had no special safety equiment such as bullet-proof glass or armor plate.

Cadillac, a division of General Motors, confirmed Monday that it donated the $9,600 car for presentation to Brezhnev.

The Russian leader, a car buff, has in his personal collection such Western autos as a Rolls Royce limousine, a Citroen-Maserati and a Renault 16.

The GM delivery of the Cadillac to Brezhnev was a well kept secret. First word of it came Monday as Nixon was leaving Moscow.

'Oceans' Special Alarming

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was ABC's turn to tackle the pollution problem with a special Monday night called "Oceans: The Silent Crisis." It concentrated not on oceans so much as on the threatened deaths of the Mississippi River and Galveston Bay from chemical poisons.

Certainly most Americans are by now familiar with pictures of fuming industrial wastes pouring into streams and rivers, and with statements of officials that "human health is endangered." But the report that "the filth of half the nation" pours into the Mississippi is alarming and dismaying.

The hour program showed company executives, pollution control experts of large corporations and public officials trying to explain, somewhat nervously, that they were trying to do something to control industrial waste or attempting to dismiss the reports. One used such earthy language that part of his response had to be erased from the sound track.

A physician told of a newly reported pollution-caused disease which is killing bathers in the United States, Australia, Belgium, England and Ireland. It was followed by an interview with the tearful widow of a man who had died of it.

Frank Reynolds came on camera at the end of the hour to say the solution to industrial and sewage pollution was "simple and expensive" but that the public and industry must be ready to assume the cost of cleaning things up—or else.

The ABC hour was basically a repetition of much that has been written and filmed before. While it made no suggestions about what one citizen could do, it may have been part of a larger effort to stimulate rescue efforts in legislative halls and directors' rooms.

For about an hour Monday there was a vivid demonstration of the fragility of international communications from Moscow.

The cameras were focused on the farewell ceremonies for President Nixon and his party, leaving Moscow for Kiev.

For almost an hour the satellite-relayed pictures were showing the crowd gathered to send the party on its way, but nobody seemed to know what was going on except that obviously the Russian plane with the President had not taken off.

Eventually word came that there had been engine trouble on the first plane, and the party had been moved to a back-up plane. But while the contretemps was in progress, the viewer had the feeling he was sitting in the back row of history in the making.

The Greeks invented locks that could be opened from the other side of the door through the world's first keyholes.

Spotting of Subversives Complex House Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is being asked to solve a complex puzzle on how to spot subversives and whether to reform the system for keeping them out of federal jobs.

Nearly a year after President Nixon decided to give the Subversive Activities Control Board some work, the House faced a choice today of either updating and renaming the panel or abolishing it and writing a new law.

Constitutional questions were being raised about both choices, and the Internal Security Committee emerged deeply split after extensive hearings on what to do with the 22-year-old board.

Due in part to Supreme Court rulings, the SACB's five members, each paid $36,000 a year, did virtually nothing for months. The court overruled the board's power to hunt, register and publicize Communist groups.

Last July, Nixon issued an executive order making the board the agency to determine who should go on the attorney general's list of subversive organizations. Federal agencies use the list as a guideline for weeding out job applicants who belong to organizations labeled subversive.

Nixon promptly asked Congress to rename SACB the "federal internal security board" and to endorse its new function. Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, sponsored the administration measure.

Later, some groups challenged Nixon's order in federal court. The judge dismissed the suit, but indicated he would set the order aside as vague and overly broad if enforcement is attempted.

Meanwhile, Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., handed his Internal Security Committee a rival proposal that he termed "more-radical surgery."

Under the Ichord bill, SACB would be abolished through repeal of the 1950 law under which it has functioned. In its place, Ichord proposed a "constitutional oath support" law creating a federal employe security and appeals commission to determine the character of subversive groups and to serve as the appeals board for federal workers dismissed because of loyalty or security questions.

The Ichord committee set aside the chairman's bill and voted 5 to 1 to send an amended version of the Ashbrook bill to the House floor. But the Rules Committee veered from normal procedure and voted to let the House choose between the two bills.

Fiscal Year Beginning Is Nearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the 1973 fiscal year little more than a month away, it looks as if the government will revert to its usual hand-to-mouth budget until Congress wraps up the annual appropriations bills.

Of all federal government functions, only Congress itself may be fully funded when the new fiscal year begins July 1.

The only appropriations bill which has cleared both the House and Senate is one setting spending for Congress and related functions at $514.7 million for the year. But even that has been stalled by a disagreement.

The House voted money to extend the west front of the Capitol; the Senate has refused to go along.

Appropriations bills for the executive and judicial branches haven't progressed that far, meaning stopgap financing probably will be necessary.

While final appropriations bills await action, Congress routinely makes funds available on a month-to-month basis to continue government operations.

Currently, there are 14 pending money bills calling for spending $175 billion. The largest is the $77 billion defense bill.

Club's Operator Dies From Wound

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A Kansas City, Kan., club operator died in a hospital here Sunday, about eight hours after he was shot while opening the club door.

Witnesses said Joe E. Reeves answered the buzzer at the front door, then staggered back into the room and fell, shot in the chest and abdomen.

Detectives said no one in the club saw the assailant, but Reeves managed to tell them two names before he died.

Police later arrested a 21-year-old man and a 23-year-old woman in connection with the shooting. Detectives said it would be later today when a decision was made whether to file charges.

Abandon Baby On Doorstep

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A Kansas City, Kan. police sergeant and his wife became temporary foster parents for an abandoned baby early Monday until they finally had to turn him over to a hospital later the same day.

Officials say the city would have been responsible if Sgt. Clyde Mohler, 29, and his wife, Celia, were to have kept the infant and anything would have happened to it.

The 8-pound week-old boy was discovered on the doorstep of a Kansas City, Kan. home about 3 a.m. Memorial Day. It is now at the University of Kansas Medical Center where it will remain until welfare workers can find a temporary home.

However, police reported late Monday night that the mother of the baby had appeared at police headquarters to claim the child. Detectives were questioning the mother and said the welfare department would make a decision in the case later today.

Mohler took the baby as his own responsibility Monday after he had made an unsuccessful attempt to place it in a hospital.

The desk sergeant said he had difficulty placing the child because hospital officials would not accept the baby without a court-appointed guardian to sign papers of responsibility.

"We loved him right away, he was so beautiful," Mohler said. "My wife went out at 4 o'clock in the morning to get some formula and a bottle. We were prepared to look after him until Tuesday, but I guess that's the way the rules are."

Mohler said the occupant of the house where the baby was left reported she answered a knock at her door and arrived in time to see a car being driven away. Police took the baby to Providence Hospital, where Mohler obtained him.

Mohler tried to reach various county judges, but could not contact them. Finally he told Wyandotte County Juvenile Court probation officer Margaret Breeden he would take the responsibility, and took the baby home.

Proxmires Disagree On Transpo Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire has called Transpo 72 a gross misuse of tax dollars, but his 23-year-old daughter is working there and considers it a great success.

"Transpo seems to be going over very well," said Miss CiCi Proxmire from behind an information booth at the Canadian Department of Transport exhibit.

"It's technically oriented, aimed more at the trade people, so some persons who come out expecting a fair are a little disappointed," she said.

"They don't really care whether the vehicle has a turbine engine or something else. But there are also many things that have a great appeal to the kids.

"It seems to me to be quite worthwhile."

Proxmire, who has asked for a General Accounting Office investigation of the 10-day exposition at Dulles International Airport, contends the Transportation Department has wasted much of the $5 million appropriated by Congress.

The Wisconsin senator in particular attacked what he called an unduly generous expense account rolled up by Transpo manager William J. Bird of Los Angeles, on loan from his post as vice president of Kaiser Industries Inc.

Miss Proxmire, asked what interesting experiences she has had since Transpo opened over the weekend, said: "Mr. Bird came to see me this morning."

She indicated the meeting was pleasant. Bird agreed.

A recent history graduate of Georgetown University, Miss Proxmire was careful not to contradict her father's view of the exposition.

"I can't say whether my father is right about this or not," she said. "I am not economically oriented, and I'm not in a position to know about such matters. It just seems that Transpo is a great success."

Miss Proxmire works part-time for a modeling agency that holds the contract to provide hundreds of attractive young women for Transpo. She hands out Canadian maps, booklets, pins and souvenirs, and answers questions.

Although all members of Congress have been invited to Transpo, Miss Proxmire said her father has not visited it.

"He has been in Wisconsin," she said. "He did see my red-and-white uniform before he left and said it was okay except for the red stockings—he didn't like them."

Duke of Windsor Death Won't Cancel Ceremony

LONDON (AP) — Buckingham Palace announced Tuesday that the Trooping of the Color in honor of the queen's official birthday Saturday, one of London's major tourist attractions during June, will not be canceled because of mourning for the Duke of Windsor.

Instead, the palace said, Queen Elizabeth II decided "that a tribute should be paid in London and that the Household Troops in which he served should have the opportunity of paying their last respects to him on parade."

Just before the queen rides out to the parade ground to take the salute, the pipes and drums of the guards will take a special position. There will be a roll of drums followed by a minute's silence timed by the toll of Big Ben. Then there will be another drum roll and the pipers will pipe a lament. Flags and drums will be swathed in black. Officers will wear mourning armbands.

The palace said it was unlikely the Duchess of Windsor would attend the ceremony but she "has expressed great pleasure" over it. She may watch it on television.

Although the queen was born on April 21—she was 46 this year—her birthday is always celebrated officially in June, when there is a better chance for good weather for the Trooping of the Color.

A Royal Air Force jet will bring the body of the duke Wednesday from Paris, where he died Sunday at the age of 77. The American woman for whom he gave up the throne in 1936 will travel with the body and for the first time since the abdication will stay at Buckingham Palace.

The duke will lie in state Friday and Saturday in St. George's chapel, at Windsor Castle, and the public will be allowed to file past the coffin. The funeral in the chapel Monday will be simple and private in accordance with the duke's instructions, attended by members of the royal family and high-ranking officials.

Burial will be in the small cemetery at Frogmore, in Windsor Park, where Queen Victoria and the duke's younger brother, the Duke of Kent, are buried. The duke chose that place of interment, instead of St. George's chapel, the traditional burial place of British monarchs, because the duchess could not be buried there.

Shooting of Pig Prompted Ceremony

FRIDAY HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — Who would have guessed that the shooting of a porker in 1859 would have resulted in an international softball game in 1972?

Certainly not the American soldier who picked off a pig belonging to a Hudson's Bay Co. agent, and thus precipitated the Pig War, a 13-year confrontation between Great Britain and the United States over possession of the San Juan Islands in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The dispute, in which no human casualties were recorded, ended Oct. 21, 1872 when Emperor Wilhelm of Germany arbitrated a settlement by awarding the contested islands to the United States.

Over the weekend, the Canadian vessel HMCS Porte de Law Reine, visited this San Juan Island community to celebrate the centennial of the end of the Pig War. Its crew engaged residents in a softball game, and the islanders enjoyed a barbecue on the ship.

Youth Abandons Police Vehicle

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis. (AP) — Sheriff Arthur Helm's department recovered its sparkling clean squad car Monday after it had gone a way toward helping a youth with a problem of boredom.

Helm said the 16-year-old ward of Ozaukee County's welfare department had received permission Sunday to wash patrol cars in the county garage as a means of keeping busy.

The car and the youth soon disappeared. The car was found abandoned and undamaged Monday. The boy was still missing.

Workshop For Camp Planned

A workshop for staff members of a June 5-June 30 summer day camp will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Farm and Home Building, Fourth and Osage, according to camp directors Carol Barnes and Phyllis Jensen.

Camp Kadeka, sponsored by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will be staffed by area citizens of all faiths, according to camp officials, who explained that since arts and crafts are so important to the success of the camp, it would be helpful to hold the workshop.

The camp, for children from six to 12, will be held from 8:45 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday, from June 5 through June 30 at Liberty Park.

Instructors for the staff workshop will be Viola Hiatt, wood and plaster of paris crafts; Ann Anderson, leather crafts; Cynthia Callis, Mexican crafts; Myrna Rager, paper and painting crafts; and Laura Mitchener, drama.

Camp officials said help would be welcome by calling 826-4265 to submit interesting camp ideas, or by calling 826-2641 to volunteer day camp assistance.

Transpo Performer Is Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I think we have a problem," the public address announcer said as Robert Kennedy of Escondido, Calif., plummeted from the sky.

Thousands of spectators at Transpo 72, the international transportation exposition watched Monday as the 26-year-old kite flier fell to his death.

A member of the Australian Birdman Team, Kennedy was killed when he lost control of his kite at an altitude of about 500 feet. He was being pulled into the air at the time by a speeding automobile.

"He was in a steep climb when all of a sudden a gust of wind hit him or something," said Jack Wallace, 31, of Leesburg, Va., who witnessed the accident.

"His feet suddenly flipped over the kite and he landed back on top of it. He yelled, 'Oh, no,' and you could see him kicking and fighting as the kite wrapped around him. As it folded up, he fell straight to the ground, just like a stone."

Kennedy landed in a grassy area at the north end of the runway, away from the spectators' stand but within view of thousands.

A public address announcer was promoting Kennedy's daring when the kite collapsed.

Kennedy, who had been flying his kite professionally for more than three years, was rushed to a medical station by helicopter. A team of three physicians, who pronounced him dead 15 minutes after he fell, said he suffered multiple head injuries and compound fractures throughout the rest of his body.

Police Academy Ends Tradition

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Police Academy will end 67 years as an all-male institution in July when 14 women join the class of 135 cadets graduating from the school after six months training.

"They lugged and fired service revolvers, threw each other around in self-defense class and took criminal law courses like the rest of us," a male cadet said.

Of the 15 women originally selected, one has dropped out. They were chosen from more than 150 applicants on the basis of age, height, physical fitness, and education.

Kitchen Debate For Pat Nixon

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Pat Nixon staged a version of the "kitchen debate" Tuesday, but it bore no resemblance to her husband's ideological discussion with Nikita Khrushchev in 1959.

Mrs. Nixon toured a Pioneer Palace where 12,000 children attend cultural and hobby classes under sponsorship of the Communist party's Pioneer youth organization.

In the building's modern kitchen Mrs. Nixon chatted with a shy, blushing 8-year-old girl about the food the children were preparing.

The girl, responding to the First Lady's questions, said her favorite food was borsch.

"How about cookies?" Mrs. Nixon asked.

"Yes," the child replied with a smile.

The children served the First Lady tea and cake and a favorite Ukrainian dish, dumplings with cherries.

She visited a class in short wave radio and found 15 cards sent by American amateur radio operators who had talked with the youngsters.

Mrs. Nixon also watched a group of youngsters perform Ukrainian folk dances, applauding vigorously as an 11-year-old boy handled the difficult squatting leg kicks with ease.

"He is good—you will see him in lights some day," she said.

While Mrs. Nixon was observing the Pioneers, the President was placing a wreath on the tomb of the Ukraine's Unknown Soldier. Then they joined forces for a brief visit to the 11th century Church of St. Sophia—now a museum—on the way to the airport.

The long caravan of limousines and sedans drove slowly through the city on a sightseeing tour before it took the main road to the airport. Thousands of people pressed up to barricades placed along the broad Shevchenko Boulevard and stood silently behind soldiers locked arm in arm along the curb.

White House officials did not hide their disappointment at the efforts by the Soviet authorities to prevent contact between the visiting President and the Soviet public.

Nixon and the First Lady were asked to sign the guest book at St. Sophia on their way out. Nixon sat down, took a fountain pen from his inside coat pocket and wrote in a large hand: "Richard M. Nixon."

He looked up and said quietly, "May 30?" He wrote the date and then added: "A great monument to the Ukraine's proud heritage."

The President stood up, extended his hand to the woman who acted as his guide in the church and gave her a Richard M. Nixon fountain pen. The startled guide gave him a book of pictures of the cathedral and its history and said, "It's in English."

"That's good news," said the President.

Gunman Ends His Barricade

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man who barricaded himself in his southeast Kansas City home, then begged police to shoot him, was captured Monday night by quick action of the department's tactical squad.

Police identified the man as Carroll McMillan. They said he apparently was upset over domestic difficulties, and fired five shots at a neighboring home. More than 30 officers responded, surrounded the home, and finally coaxed the man outside to talk.

The man walked around for some time, keeping a gun pointed at his head, and begging officers to shoot him.

A member of the Kansas City police department's tactical unit was able to shine a flashlight in the man's face while another officer crept up behind him and knocked the gun from his hand.

The incident spanned three hours. At one point, an officer who knew McMillan called him by phone. The officer said McMillan told him it was his intention to die in his home.

Survivor of Lafayette Escadrille Recalls Past

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — It's Sept. 24, 1917, and Douglas MacMonagle and Carl Dolan are winding up a 48-hour leave in Paris. Mac is drunk.

"I couldn't get him back to camp," Carl, or retired Col. Charles H. Dolan II, recalled nearly 55 years later. "I'd get him into a cab and he'd get out and run away. He kept disappearing. I had to look in every bar in Paris for him."

Dolan finally got MacMonagle back to the camp—only two hours before the morning patrol was due to take off. Mac was on it, but he couldn't find his helmet. He asked if he could borrow Dolan's.

"I offered to go in his place, but Mac said, 'No'."

Dolan went to sleep again only to be awakened shortly afterward. "It was the captain. He said, 'Dolan, go get Mac's body.' Raoul Lufbery later told me that Mac broke away from the group and went straight into the sun after a German. The German happened to be Von Richthofen.

"He was killed by the Red Baron and he was wearing my helmet," Dolan said. "He was shot in the head."

Dolan and MacMonagle were members of the Lafayette Escadrille, the first significant organized group of American combat pilots to go to war. They flew for France in World War I, as a squadron of the France Service Aeronautique and later, though still under French command, as the 103rd Aero Pursuit Group of the American Army. The Escadrille still survives in the French air force today.

Over the years, thousands have claimed membership in the Escadrille, (French for squadron), but there were only 38 Americans and four French officers who whirred into aerial combat in French Nieuports and Spad biplanes with the Escadrille.

Today, only Dolan survives.

He lives in Oahu's northeast shore, spending much of his time seated in a white, wicker chair looking out through a large picture window on to the Pacific Ocean. His home is full of mementoes spanning half a century. Among the most prized is his French aviation "brevet," or license.

He also shows a visitor a picture of himself when he was in his early 20s and with the Escadrille. It is a picture of a handsome, mustached man in a French uniform. The hair and mustache long since have turned silver.

When Dolan talks about the events of the Great War, he drops such names as Billy Mitchell, Gen. Pershing and Eddie Rickenbacker as if they were next-door neighbors.

He'll tell you about an age when chivalry was alive; when enemy pilots smiled and waved farewell to each other when one could find an honorable excuse to break off an engagement; when a pilot would drop a note to the enemy identifying a pilot he had shot down; when a captured pilot would have a drink with men who only minutes before had been trying to kill him.

When war broke out in Europe, Dolan went to London in a cattle boat. His objective was to join the Royal Flying Corps but instead he took a job as an aero inspector and later with Sperry Gyroscope installing auto pilots on aircraft.

While working with Sperry, Dolan met Escadrille pilots William Thaw, Lufbery, the double ace, and others in the bars of Paris. They invited him to join the unit, and faced with a transfer to Russia, he accepted.

The group that Dolan joined had been welded out of American volunteers, many of whom served as common soldiers in the French Foreign Legion, or in the American Ambulance Corps.

They were idealistic men like Norman Prince, a young lawyer and Harvard graduate who spent flamboyant summers on an estate near Pau in the Basses-Pyrenees; or Victor Chapman, son of John Jay Chapman, the lawyer and poet; or Thaw, the son of a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad. MacMonagle was the son of a San Francisco physician.

There also were the drifters and adventurers—"The soldiers of fortune who wanted to know who in the hell Lafayette was," Dolan says.

Idealists or adventurers, they shared one thing in common: They preferred the individualism of flying to the trenches of Verdun. And they began trickling into the French air squadrons.

Finally, the French agreed to establish a single squadron out of the American fliers. Officially informed April 16, 1917, it was called the Escadrille Americaine, and it became a symbol of American sympathy for France in the war. Later, because of American neutrality and German objections, its name was changed to the Escadrille Lafayette.

It is credited with shooting down 40 German planes, but Dolan says the actual count probably is about 100.

But Dolan doesn't boast about the Escadrille. He says that much written about the squadron has been exaggerated and that the press has glorified the pilots.

Eight members of the Escadrille were killed in combat. Dolan narrowly missed becoming one of them when, hit by artillery fire, he crash landed his Spad in no-man's land near Verdun.

Nineteen Missouri Fatalities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 19 persons died on Missouri Highways over the Memorial Day weekend, four more than during the similar period a year ago.

Harold Simpson, 31, of St. Joseph, was killed about 8:30 Monday night when his car was struck by a Burlington freight train on a county road in Andrews County.

Eight of the 19 victims were motorcyclists. The latest cycle victims were identified by the highway patrol as 35-year-old Harold Nelson of Springfield and 29-year-old Rebecca Stamps of Walnut Grove, Mo. They were killed at mid-afternoon Monday when the cycles they were riding hit a har headon north of Dadeville in Dade County.

Two other persons died about the same time when their car went out of control and hit a bridge abutment on Highway 15 north of Memphis, Mo., in Scotland County. The victims were identified as Mary Shriver, 67, Arbella, Mo., and Carrie Weigner, 90, of Memphis.

Killed Sunday were:

Leeoma Gordon, 31, Morehouse, Mo. and James David Payne, 27, Poplar Bluff, in a two-car collision on Highway 114;

Motorcyclist James Bernard Schwartz, 21, of Koeltztown, in south central Missouri, when his cycle and a car collided on Missouri 133 near Westphalia; and

Samuel Brawley, 36, Belleville, Ill., when he was thrown from an overturning car that left Highway 32 west of Licking.

Killed Sunday were:

Mrs. Dorothy E. McCullough, 60, and her daughter, Mrs. Sally Miller, 33, both of Lincoln, Neb., in a one-car accident on U.S. 73 south of Atchison;

Andrew Kahlor, 78, Oberlin, Kan., in a two-car collision on U.S. 83 north of Oberlin; and

George Ballard, 39, Council Bluffs, Iowa, in a fiery crash of his pickup truck and a tractor-trailer rig on U.S. 36 east of Marysville.

Epilepsy Isn't Rare Disorder

Dear Dr. Lamb— I am an epileptic and never miss taking my medicine. I occasionally feel uneasy but since I am aware of the symptoms in my case that precede a seizure I immediately hope for it to pass, stop what I am doing and pray. One doctor told me epilepsy was inherited and another said it was not. What do you think? No one in my family has it. Do you think it is fair that in some states they ask if you have epilepsy when you get a driver's license? They don't ask about other diseases. I am sorry I cannot sign my name. You see I am not being honest either because my family doesn't know about me.

Dear Reader — You got a difference of opinion from two doctors because the answer is not yes or no. In the first place, if by epilepsy one means convulsions, there are several different types. Rare instances are caused by brain injury and brain tumors. Brain damage caused by injuries can be corrected in some instances.

The more common form of epilepsy with no apparent cause has been labeled as genetic, meaning it has some relationship to heredity. That does not mean a person who has epilepsy will have children who have this problem. Many individuals with this problem do not have a family history of epilepsy. Only about three to five per cent of the relatives of patients with this type of epilepsy also have it.

If two individuals who both have epilepsy marry, the likelihood of their children having epilepsy is significantly increased. If an individual with epilepsy wanted to be reasonably certain not to have children with this problem, he should seek genetic counseling to determine insofar as possible if there is any increased likelihood of having children with epilepsy.

Regarding driver's licenses, all states will permit certain epileptics to obtain a driver's license. This has not always been true. Some states require, "in the interest of road safety," a doctor's certificate to indicate a period of freedom from convulsive episodes. An individual who has been free of episodes and is well controlled with his medicine is not likely to have any difficulty in obtaining a license in most states. By the way, a state which has a good control program in this area usually has insurance policies that are much cheaper for epileptics than those who do not.

The individual with epilepsy well controlled by medicines is certainly a much safer driver than the large number of individuals who have had one too many cocktails. There are probably more automobile accidents caused by heart disease than by epilepsy, if for no other reason than the high incidence of heart disease in our society. In general the whole concept of medical fitness for driving which should include medical, psychiatric, and drug use, including alcohol, needs a good overhaul. There would be a lot of difficulties in implementing any good program for this. Many of the people responsible for any such legislation, merely by virtue of their own age and their own disabling diseases, would oppose it.

It sounds like you are doing real well. My only concern is your secretiveness about your disorder. After all, it is just another illness and there are about as many people who have epilepsy as have diabetes.

Annual Election Set By Department

OTTERVILLE — The Otterville Rural Fire Department will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the IOOF Hall here at 8 p.m. June 19, immediately following the Chamber of Commerce meeting, it was announced by L. H. Wallenburn, Route 1, secretary of the department.

Wallenburn said annual membership dues are payable by June 30 for residents who desire continued fire protection. Checks should be made payable to the Otterville Rural Fire Department and mailed to Wallenburn.

Pentagon Reports Shifting Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources say the North Vietnamese appear to have shifted surface-to-air missiles back into the Hanoi-Haiphong region to strengthen defenses against heavy U.S. bombing.

Early this year, Hanoi concentrated nearly two-thirds of its 44 antiaircraft-missile battalions in the North Vietnamese panhandle, between the 20th Parallel and the demilitarized zone, in preparation for the invasion of South Vietnam across the DMZ.

Some of those SAM battalions harassed American warplanes when they tried to stem the North Vietnamese advance. One of the battalions was moved into South Vietnam.

Pentagon sources say the redeployment of SAM battalions northward began after big U.S. air raids on targets close to Hanoi and Haiphong in mid-April, which marked a return to the type of bombing campaign carried on by the United States against North Vietnam before the Johnson administration ordered it halted in late 1968.

By early May, sources said, five battalions had been moved from the panhandle into the heavily populated Red River delta region which includes Hanoi and Haiphong. And the battalion which had been pushed forward into South Vietnam was pulled north of the DMZ once again.

More recently, as U.S. air attacks ranged widely across the North, more SAM units appeared to have been redeployed from the panhandle, sources said. Specific numbers were not available, indicating that military intelligence still was analyzing its information.

During the 3½-year pause in sustained bombing of North Vietnam, U.S. engineers developed much improved equipment for jamming and confusing enemy radar.

Truth About Commencement Speeches

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — It's time for those enlightening, inspiring commencement speeches again. Most students are willing to sit through them just so they can get their diplomas. What isn't known is that what commencement speakers are saying and what they're thinking are quite different:

"My fellow graduates.

Buchwald

"It is indeed a great pleasure for me to be here on what is probably the most important day of your lives."

(If it weren't for this honorary degree, I could have been playing golf this afternoon.)

"I know these are troubled times for all of us. I am troubled, you are troubled, we are troubled, they are troubled. Everyone is troubled."

(I wish they wouldn't sit the coeds in the first row with their legs sticking out of their gowns. It's hard to concentrate.)

"The problem is not that we are troubled, but what we can do about it. Certainly you can throw your hands in the air and say, 'It's hopeless.' Or you can say, 'Give us your troubles and let us solve them for you.'"

(I wonder if any of the wire services will ask for copies of my speech.)

"I would be the first one to admit that our generation has not succeeded in conquering the great issues of the day — pollution, poverty, racism, war and hunger."

(At least they know I've got humility.)

"But we have started the fight. You must pick up the weapons that we have left on the battlefield and continue the struggle. The journey of a thousand miles begins with one step."

(Is it possible that the blonde sitting in the end seat just winked at me? Why, I'm old enough to be her father. But then again, she might be a graduate student.)

"We are different from all of God's other creatures in that we can do something about our environment. We can harness the sun's energy, we can control our waters with concrete, we can enrich the earth with chemicals."

(It could be my imagination, but half of those graduates out there look stoned.)

"But man also has the capacity to wreak havoc on the earth. And I might add, with a bow toward Women's Lib, that woman has this capacity as well."

(I thought that would get a laugh. These kids don't have any sense of humor at all.)

"Each man must decide for himself or herself what path he or she will take. Will he or she pay homage to the sun or will he or she crawl into a cave and curse the darkness?"

(I'll bet not one has ever heard it put that way before.)

"I would be a fool to say that your diploma is a ticket to a better life. It is not what you hold in your hand, but what you hold in your head and your heart that will decide your destiny."

(By gosh, she winked at me again. And now she's smiling. Maybe she needs a job. I wonder if she takes shorthand?)

"Today is the first day of the rest of your life. Your parents and teachers have done all they can for you. It is now up to every one of you to carry the ball.

"We can't all get to the Super Bowl, but we can all play the game. We can't all win the World Series, but we can still swing at the ball. The important thing is not to be a spectator in the stands, but to go out on the field and fight for what you believe in."

(I wonder if Time magazine will pick that up?)

"So, in conclusion, I wish to say that if I had the choice of any time in history to live, I would choose now. And if I had any choice of graduating, I would prefer to graduate in the class of 1972. To quote an old song, 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile.' Thank you."

(That's not much of an ovation. Maybe I didn't read it well?)

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Animals have often been cited with helping to save human lives. One recent incident involved a grey seal that made friends with swimmers at a sea resort in West Germany. When a drowning girl cried for help, a man and a seal made a joint rescue in which the seal assisted by swimming beneath the man and girl, helping to hold them up until they reached shore, The World Almanac says.

A Conservative View

Powell Proves Wisdon

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Back in the autumn, when Mr. Nixon nominated Lewis F. Powell, Jr., to the U.S. Supreme Court, some of us who had known Powell for many years undertook to compliment the President on his choice. On reading the Court's jury trial opinions of May 22, it seems possible that our gratitude was not sufficiently expressed at the time. So, again: Thank you, Mr. President, for Mr. Justice Powell.

Kilpatrick

The Virginia jurist delivered himself in the two test cases of an opinion so firmly reasoned, and so faithful to the spirit of the Constitution, that it may stand as a model of what is meant by "judicial restraint" and "strict construction." In doing so, he raised anew an old standard of jurisprudence: In construing the Constitution, it is the "intendment" that counts.

The two cases, one from Louisiana, the other from Oregon, raised the same question: Does the Fourteenth Amendment prohibit the States from authorizing less-than-unanimous verdicts in their own jury trials? Five members of the Court agreed: No, it does not.

It was Powell's concurring opinion that tipped the balance. In his own spare and methodical prose (he is not much of a phrase-maker), Powell carefully laid down the distinction that our whole plan of government makes between the power of the Federal government on the one hand, and the power of the States on the other. He was driven irresistibly to conclude that the Constitution requires unanimous verdicts in Federal trials, but that no such requirement applies to jury verdicts within the States.

Such a conclusion accords precisely with the dual nature of our government. It is what federalism is all about. Constitutionally speaking, as the Fourteenth Amendment itself makes clear in its opening sentence, we do not live in one nation. We are at once citizens of the United States, and also citizens of the States wherein we reside. One body of law applies in the first instance, another body of law in the second. The most grievous offense of the liberal activists who have dominated the Court in recent years is that they have systematically blurred this distinction. They have treated the Fourteenth Amendment of 1868 as a vast and insatiable blotter, soaking up everything that had gone before.

Powell's opinion of May 22 implicitly rejects the blotter theory. To accept this notion, he wrote, is to derogate "principles of federalism which are basic to our system." In attempting to impose national uniformity, even for the highest motives, "the Court has embarked upon a course of constitutional interpretation which deprives the States of freedom to experiment with adjudicatory procedures different from the Federal model."

In the test cases, the court was concerned with a robber named Johnson and with three men named Apodaca, Cooper and Madden, who had been convicted, respectively, of assault with a deadly weapon, burglary and grand larceny. If they had been tried by juries in federal courts, on federal charges, the verdicts would have demanded unanimity. But Johnson was tried in Louisiana, where the state constitution requires only "a jury of twelve, nine of whom must concur to render a verdict." And the other three were tried in Oregon, where the state constitution says that except in cases of first degree murder, "ten members of the jury may render a verdict of guilty or not guilty."

To nullify these provisions of the State constitutions of Louisiana and Oregon, the Court would have been compelled to hold that the Fourteenth Amendment was intended to prohibit any such variations from the Federal rule. It strains credulity, Powell wrote, to suppose any such thing. He voted to affirm the convictions.

Does this mean that the Court majority regards the Louisiana and Oregon system as wise? No, indeed. Justice Harry Blackmun went out of the way to record his own personal distaste for a less-than-unanimous rule. The decisions of May 22 mean simply, and admirably, that Burger, White, Blackmun, Powell and Rehnquist, in these significant cases, are unwilling to read more into the Fourteenth than the Fourteenth was intended to mean. Four of these five jurists were named to the Court by Richard Nixon, which is one reason, among others, that many conservatives will be happy to have the President safely back home in the White House.

Inventory Control Can Curb Wastes

The employe magazine of one of the nation's railroads has appealed to the company loyalty of workers to help solve the problem of abandoned or lost materials.

"In the course of a normal working day," asks the Rock Island "Rocket," " ... how many times has one noticed a pile of spikes, some rail anchors or the plates rusting away in the weeds? Or empty 55-gallon drums collecting water and debris? Or oxygen or acetylene tanks that haven't been moved in years? Or an air hose that has been dropped and forgotten?"

To make employes more cost conscious, the purchasing department has distributed cards listing some common items and their prices.

A single track spike, for instance, costs only 11 cents. "But if you multiply that 11 cents by several hundred spikes thrown away, lost or just left behind at a job scene, the figure starts to mushroom."

Indubitably. And if this company is typical of others in its business, it's no wonder the nation's rail system is in such straits as it is today.

There is such a thing as inventory control, whereby you keep an account of every item purchased and checked out to employes. Rather than relying on their good nature to round up discarded materials, you simply do not permit them to lose or throw away the materials in the first place.

The military services, perhaps, can get away with the careless waste of equipment. They are spared the burden of prudent management because they can dip freely into the bottomless pocket of the taxpayer.

Not so the railroads. Not yet, anyway.

Hotel Manager Stops Telephone Buggers

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Two House investigators sought to eavesdrop electronically the other day on a radical youth group's convention in a Chicago hotel. But they were stopped by the hotel president who considered the surveillance illegal.

The investigators, who work for the House Internal Security Committee, come under the direct supervision of Ohio's John Ashbrook, the ranking Republican and personable right winger, who is challenging President Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination.

Reached on the campaign trail in Arizona, Ashbrook said he thought his investigators' conduct was improper. "If they had asked me about it, I would have said no," he told my associate Brit Hume.

The incident occurred at the Midland Hotel where the far-left Young Workers Liberation League held its convention May 5-8.

The committee's chief minority investigator, Herbert Rommerstein, acknowledged that he and colleague Richard Norusis were present as part of their assignment to investigate "The Theory and Practice of Communism."

They arrived two days before the convention began, and Norusis registered in the hotel under a phony address. At his request, a hotel engineer wired the convention room so that its loudspeaker could be monitored secretly from elsewhere in the building.

Eugene Pekow, president of the hotel, said the staff apparently believed the investigators were FBI men. When he learned of the wiring, he asked to see them.

The hotel manager brought Rommerstein and Norusis to his office where they identified themselves as being from the HISC. Pekow told them he believed the wiring was illegal and read them a section of an Illinois law prohibiting such eavesdropping.

The men stuck around the hotel during the convention anyway and made use of the room Norusis had been assigned, although they didn't pay for it.

Responding to the charge that he is the Barry Goldwater of the Democrats, Sen. George McGovern may soon begin claiming instead a likeness to one of his party's deities: Franklin Roosevelt.

McGovern's sweeping reform proposals have made party regulars nervous that his liberalism will alienate all but the most leftist Democrats and thus re-elect President Nixon.

But McGovern has been receiving different counsel from such advisers as Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., the prolific historian best known as a biographer of Franklin Roosevelt.

In a recent memo, he told McGovern, "Actually the situation does not resemble the Republican 1964 situation in more than the most superficial way.

"Then Goldwater, as the candidate of the right wing of the Republican party, tried to reverse the direction of his party and move it somewhere back into the past."

"Your effort, I take it, is quite the opposite ... You are trying to put the party back into the mainstream and to plant it on the broadest possible platform — that is, on the needs of the future."

"In this regard your situation—indeed, the general 1972 situation—resembles Roosevelt in 1932 much more than Goldwater in 1964.

"In 1972, as in 1932, the nation is in a condition of political and economic deadlock ... A Republican President has shown himself vacillating and callous in his attitude toward domestic social problems.

"Now, as then, the Republican administration prides itself on disdaining the dramatic and spectacular, on practicing a 'low profile,' which is another way of priding itself on doing as little as possible.

"What FDR had going for him was a strong sense of the insufficiency of existing social and economic policies, a strong instinct for the future and a strong concern for what he called the 'forgotten man' — largely forgotten again in our own day.

"Above all, he put together a new coalition—a coalition that revitalized the Democratic party and ushered in a new epoch in American politics. That is what you have the opportunity to do now.

"You have already begun to bring together the Kennedy and McCarthy forces of 1968—the blacks, browns and low-income whites who followed RFK, the suburbanites and Republicans who followed McCarthy and the students and intellectuals who followed them both. In Wisconsin, you showed that you could add the farmers.

"The important thing, as you have so often said yourself, is to make our base as broad as possible.

"The nation cannot be united by rhetoric. It can only be united by programs and policies ... You can do this; and, as you argue the case for new directions, you will be perceived, as FDR eventually was, as the one truly unifying and reconciling candidate."

Those lovable pandas from Red China cost the American taxpayer some $600,000.

In answer to a query from Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., administration officials have conceded that $500,000 is being spent to house the pandas at Washington's zoo. Another $98,000 was expended to transport America's gift of musk oxen to Red China and return the pandas by Air Force C-141 to the United States.

South has only four low cards in his hand, but they are far more important in the play than his aces, kings, queens and jacks. It doesn't matter that South is in a three no-trump contract that can probably only be defeated by an Act of Congress, South still wants to make as many extras as possible.

He wins the diamond lead and decides to attack spades because his spade spots are better than his clubs. He leads a low spade toward dummy but should be careful to lead the eight, not the six. He wants to hold that six in reserve so that if spades break 3-2 he will have an extra entry to dummy.

Sure enough, spades break 3-2 and the seven spot is an entry. South decides to let it wait for a while and attacks clubs. This time he should lead the seven spot, not the four. It doesn't really matter at this point but it is good to keep in practice with correct spot card play.

Just remember that a really good player makes this type of play automatically. Clubs behave just as nicely as the spades did and South finds that he has 12 sure tricks. Eventually he tries the heart finesse. That works also and South makes seven.

Did he belong in a slam? Not quite. He won three finesses out of three and two suits broke well in addition.

Cards' Lead Vanishes

Mets Score Four In the 9th Inning

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals had trouble believing a 7-6 loss Monday to the New York Mets but not Ken Boswell, a slump-ridden hitter.

"I didn't think I was ever going to hit one," said the Mets' 6-foot second baseman, who homered for three runs in a four-run New York ninth.

"I've been trying to come back from a slump," added Boswell, whose blow produced a 6-6 tie. "I've just been trying to hit the ball hard."

Boswell, hitting .177, and the Mets had only three hits until right-hander Tony Cloninger spelled Cards started Scipio Spinks, who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Jerry Grote opened the ninth with a single up the middle, then pinch-hitter Dave Marshall popped up and Bud Harrelson worked Cloninger for a walk.

Boswell, batting frohm the left side, stood 2-2 with Cloninger (0-1) before slamming a fast ball 345 feet off the right field line for the homer, his first of the season.

Tommie Agee followed with a single off Cloninger, Rusty Staub was hit by a delivery from reliever Charlie Hudson and pinch-hitter Willie Mays was walked by reliever Moe Drabowsky to set up the Mets' winning run.

Drabowsky, facing hitless Jim Fregosi, uncorked a high fast ball that sailed past catcher Ted Simmons for a passed ball that permitted Agee to trot home.

"I don't think I'm any .177 hitter," said Boswell, who called extra time spent in batting practice the key to ending his slump.

"Basically I always stick to my same swing, but I've been listening to a lot of people on what I've been doing wrong. One swing doesn't really get you out of it."

Until the Boswell swat, a three-run eighth highlighted by Jerry McNertney and Lou Brock triples had the Cards on top 6-3.

The uprising was off Mets ace reliever Tug McGraw, who spelled starter Buzz Capra in the sixth, and even manager Yogi Berra guarded the outlook.

"Sometimes you're beat in a situation like that and sometimes you're not," he conceded. "It all depends on how you start out the inning."

Berra also took lightly the margin of victory, the Mets' 13th by one run against only setback this year. "I'd like to win by more than one run if we could," he said.

Torre Slides Into Third

A double and an error in the sixth inning of Monday's game in St. Louis between the Cardinals and the New York Mets, moved St. Louis' Joe Torre into third. He slides into the bag ahead of the throw from Mets' John Milner to third baseman Jim Fregosi. Milner bobbled Torre's long double and was charged with an error. New York, trailing 6-3 as they came to bat in the top of the ninth, chased in four runs to win the game, 7-6. (UPI)

O's Drop Indians Into Third Place

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I'd hate to think where we'd be without Don Baylor, Terry Crowley and Bobby Grich," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver mused.

One thing for sure—the Orioles wouldn't be leading the American League East today.

Cleveland ambled into Baltimore four games ago, leading the division. But after running headlong into the Orioles' kiddie corps and their quartet of 20-game winners, the Indians crawled out of town in third, 1½ games off the pace.

Baylor, Grich and right-hander Pat Dobson did the damage Monday night in leading the Orioles to a 6-1 triumph for a series sweep.

In other American League games, the New York Yankees took a pair from Detroit 5-1 and 4-2, Oakland whipped Texas twice 4-1 and 7-1, the Chicago White Sox beat California 5-4 before the Angels won the 10-inning second game 3-2, Milwaukee shelled Boston 11-3 and Kansas City's game at Minnesota was rained out.

In the National League, the New York Mets defeated St. Louis 7-6, the Chicago Cubs beat Montreal 5-2, Atlanta nipped San Diego 2-1, Cincinnati pummeled Houston 8-3, Los Angeles downed San Francisco 5-2 and Pittsburgh took two from Philadelphia 7-3 and 4-2.

Dobson tossed a five-hitter as the Indians managed just 19 hits and four runs in the four games. Crowley had an off night at the plate but Baylor and Grich continued their hot performances with a run-batted-in apiece while Merv Rettenmund singled, doubled and tripled and scored twice.

The Orioles got all the runs they needed against Dick Tidrow in the first inning Monday night as Baylor singled to left to score Rettenmund, then came home himself as Boog Powell singled.

Successive pinch doubles by Ron Swoboda and Rusty Torres, the latter a two-run shot, turned the nightcap around for the Yankees after Steve Kline had outdueled eight-game winner Mickey Lolich in the opener.

In the first game, successive sacrifice flies by Swoboda and Hal Lanier, a couple of replacements in the lineup, gave New York a 2-0 lead in the seventh and it ballooned to 5-0 in the eighth on three walks, Felipe Alou's fly ball and Torres' double.

O'Connors Comes Back Through Losers Bracket

(Democrat-Capital Service)

BOONVILLE — After losing their tourney opener to Pilot Grove, Mike O'Connor Motors came back through the losers' bracket and captured the championship of the Boonville Invitational Softball Tournament here Monday. O'Connors topped host Boonville, 8-5, in the championship contest.

In winning the title, O'Connors had to play three games Monday. They avenged their 4-2 opening loss to Pilot Grove by downing them, 11-1 at noon. Monday afternoon, they topped Boonville, who came out of the winners' bracket of the double-elimination tourney, 9-2. That threw the championship up for grabs in a deciding game Monday night, since it was Boonville's first loss.

A single by Tom Hunter in the fourth inning put O'Connors on top in the game, 4-3. Herb Ford had doubled to open the inning; Vernon Harvey reached first on an error. The runners advanced on John Fiene's sacrifice, setting up the two-run single by Hunter. O'Connors chased in four insurance runs in the sixth.

Fiene got credit for the victory; the loss was charged to Martin Wesselman.

O'Connors swatted 14 homers in the four-day tourney; Hunter led the way with four, which helped swell their current record to 17-5.

Thursday night in Housel Park, O'Connors takes on Ditzfeld Transfer in a twinbill at 7:30 p.m.

Raiding the Indians

Baltimore's catcher John Oates tries to single-handedly raid the Cleveland Indians' home territory in the fifth inning of Monday's game in Baltimore as he slides home toward his Cleveland counterpart, Ray Fosse. Oates was cut down on the attempted steal. The Orioles didn't need his run anyway, they downed the Indians, 6-1. (UPI)

Indy Wrapup

Donohue's Check Tops $218,000

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "It's kind of bad to take somebody's place," Al Unser said. "I don't feel like we belong up here in second place."

Nobody took Mark Donohue's place. He won the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race. But Unser, who finished third in the running, wound up second after original runner-up Jerry Grant was bumped down to 12th for illegal refueling.

Donohue, a 35-year-old engineering graduate from Brown University, captured the 56th edition of the Memorial Weekend classic Saturday and took home a cool $218,767.90 for it.

Gary Bettenhausen, of Tinley Park, Ill., led for 126 of the 200 laps. But with only 18 of them remaining, ignition troubles knocked him out of the race, leaving Grant in front.

And just six laps later, Grant, of Seattle, scooted into the pits for quick repairs on a vibrating right front wheel—and Donohue had the lead.

He held it for the remaining 12 laps—30 miles—to win with a record average speed of 162.962 miles an hour. He also turned the fastest single lap at 187.539.

Al Unser, who failed in his bid to win his third straight Indy, was third when the cars crossed the finish line and Joe Leonard was fourth.

But after speedway officials upheld a protest by Unser's chief mechanic, George Bignotti, Grant was bounced out of the top 10, boosting the other finishers up a notch. The officials said Grant improperly took fuel from teammate Bobby Under's tank during that final pit stop.

The infraction cost Grant more than just the No. 2 spot. While Al Unser took home $95,257.89 for second place and Leonard received $58,797.89, Grant wound up with $23,852.85—a loss of some $72,000 for the penalty.

There was auto racing in places other than Indianapolis over the Memorial Day weekend, too.

At Charlotte, N.C., Buddy Baker drove his red Dodge to a one-mile victory Sunday in the World 600 stock car race, averaging 142.255 mile per hour and earning $21,975.

Bobby Allison gunning for his third consecutive victory in the race, had his Chevrolet 100 yards in front of Baker with just 50 miles to go when his right rear tire flattened.

Charlie Glotzbach finished third in a Dodge, more than 12 miles back. Benny Parsons was fourth and LeeRoy Yarbrough fifth, both in Mercurys.

Also Sunday, three-times Indianapolis 500 winner A.J. Foyt was hospitalized with first and second degree burns suffered during a pit stop in a 100-lap United States Auto Club dirt-track event at Du Quoin, Ill.

San Jacinto Tops Mesa In JuCo Baseball Play

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — If Rick Burley was awed by the credentials of defending national Junior Collegs baseball champion Mesa, Ariz., it lasted only an inning.

Burley, strong pitcher for San Jacinto Junior College of Pasadena, Tex., gave up two runs to Mesa in the first inning of the national tourney's third round game Monday night.

Then he watched what his teammates could do with a bat, settled down and blanked the defending champions the rest of the way, allowing five hits and striking out 15 as San Jacinto won 5-2.

The victory left San Jacinto as the only undefeated team in the double elimination tournament.

The Texas team plays Manatee, Fla., in the final game of the fourth round tonight, while Mesa attempts to work its way up to another crack at the national title in an afternoon game against Columbia, Tenn., State.

Manatee erupted for 13 runs in the fourth inning and eliminated Kingsborough Community College of Brooklyn, N.Y., 23-4, while Columbia ousted Meramec Community College of St. Louis, Mo., 12-8, Monday.

Columbia State capitalized on seven errors and Kerry Crocker's three-run homer in the fourth inning for the victory over Meramec.

Evaluate Baseball Strike: Owners Biggest Losers

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) — The strike lingers like a remissive abcess. The root of discontent in baseball, its fester abated by the resumption of play, won't flare up for another year, although the poison of the schism between players and owners still infects the system.

Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, who was closer to the raw ends than most as a player representative, says, "Once we get to summer, we'll feel it even less. It'll wear off."

With the emotional pain of the flareup allayed, it is possible now to localize the causes of one of the more embarrassing periods in sports history and assess the after-effects.

The early analyses of the strike concentrated blame on the players as the ungrateful minions who had traduced the grand style of baseball by bellowing for more money in an already inflated pension grab-bag. Even their intent was misinterpreted, like how come guys making up to $200,000 a year are asking owners to cough up more dough.

It puzzled me particularly that the majority of the baseball press condemned the players for their grubbiness and their obstinacy. The guys doing the writing are working stiffs themselves who generally have their own unions trying to get better conditions for them, so you'd have thought their natural sympathies would be with the players as co-workers. Instead, they generously emphasized the fact that the public was with the owners.

Even the issues were distorted. Let's look at them baldly. The players weren't really asking the owners per se to give them anything. They were asking for a cost-of-living increase in pension benefits by taking money from a surplus which was already built up. And how was it built up? Not by donations from the owners, but basically from the slice of World Series broadcast money which had long ago been apportioned to the pension instead of going to the players individually as their logical cut.

The owners wouldn't have given up one cent of their own revenue in 1972, or any other year.

When an impasse was reached over increasing the pension—the owners had to give permission—the players suggested neutral arbitration, a traditional and honored practice in labor negotiations, and were flatly turned down. Ergo, strike.

The ridiculous posture of the owners was revealed by none other than Charles O. Finley, an insurance magnate, who said later that if the actuarial figures of the existing pension fund had been revealed to him and the other owners, they never would have voted against the players in the first place.

A fashionable argument against the players is to question how a young guy who plays a kid's game is entitled to a pension which can pay him up to $2,000 a month or thereabouts. That's like wondering why Tony Bennett should get $40,000 a week in Las Vegas and set up tax shelters. The big league baseball player is a highly skilled professional, one of a species of only 1,000 in a nation of more than 200 million people. He sells himself on the open market for all he can get, while he can get it, because his skills are perishable. Building up protection against the day he vanishes into limbo is natural and negotiable.

Now we come to the effect of the strike. Did it hurt the players' earning power? Immediately, it cost them a few bucks in salary. Indirectly, by making people realize for a few weeks early in the season they didn't really miss baseball, it could have cost them more.

But the guy who really lost was the owner. First, he took the biggest financial bath from the games missed because they were the lush opening dates of the season, and irretrievable. Second, he's in the business of selling his team to the public, and for one month or more he was busy maligning it.

The image of the owner as a benevolent patron is gone. He killed it himself. He also lashed out at Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, as the Machiavellian villain.

"I was surprised," says Seaver now, "the way the players stood together. Most of us respected Miller tremendously. He guided us very well, not in trying to tell us what to do but in giving us alternatives and letting us make up our own minds."

There was, for Seaver, one benefit from the strike—and one which may heal the canker when the pension issue is raised again next year.

"The owners," he says, "now treat the players much more like men."

A helluva way to get adult treatment.

Pirates Rough Phillies Twice

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Express is picking up steam after moving through Philadelphia. Conductor Bill Virdon now has his crew making tracks for New York.

"I've never seen a ballclub swing the bats like they do," Manager Frank Lucchesi said after Virdon's locomotive Pirates whistled by his Phillies 7-3 and 4-2 Monday.

The sweep gave Pittsburgh 13 victories in the last 15 games and cut into the lead of the front-running New York Mets in the National League East. Despite beating St. Louis 7-6, the Mets' margin dropped to 3½ games.

Pittsburgh's latest victories were fashioned typically—by a non-stop hitting attack.

Pittsburgh's part-timers are just as hard on the opposition as the regulars. Rennie Stennett and Jose Pagan, a pair of utilitymen, played major roles Monday.

In the other National League games Monday, the Houston Astros lost to the Cincinnati Reds 8-3 and had their West lead trimmed to a mere half-game over Los Angeles while the Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 5-2. The Chicago Cubs downed the Montreal Expos 5-2 and the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Diego Padres 2-1 in other action.

In the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Boston Red Sox 11-3; the New York Yankees took a pair from the Detroit Tigers 5-1 and 4-2; the Oakland A's beat the Texas Rangers twice 4-1 and 7-1, the Baltimore Orioles topped the Cleveland Indians 6-1 and the Chicago White Sox defeated California 5-4 in the first game of a twin bill and the Angels won the second game 3-2 in 10 innings. Rain washed out Kansas City at Minnesota.

Pittsburgh's first-game attack was led by Pagan, a 36-year-old third baseman who is usually used against left-handed pitchers. He had a home run, two doubles and a single in four at-bats, knocked in two runs and scored twice. Then Stennett, subbing for Dave Cash at second base, was the second-game hero with three hits, an RBI and a run scored.

Ken Boswell belted a game-tying, three-run homer and Tommie Agee raced home from third on catcher Ted Simmons' passed ball to lift New York over St. Louis. The Cardinals had scored three runs off the Mets ace reliever, Tug McGraw, to take a short-lived 6-3 lead in the last of the eighth.

But the Cardinal relief staff fell apart in the ninth as Jerry Grote opened the rally with a single and went to second on Bud Harrelson's one-out walk. Boswell then struck his first homer of the season to tie the game.

Bobby Tolan scored the deciding run on a rundown play in the seventh inning and Cincinnati added four more runs in the ninth to hand fading Houston its third straight loss.

After Tolan came home from third to give the Reds a 4-3 advantage, they put the game out of Houston's reach with their ninth-inning rally keyed by Joe Hague's three-run homer.

Steve Garvey, Jim Lefebvre and Frank Robinson crashed home runs and Don Sutton won his 10th straight victory over two seasons in the Los Angeles' victory.

Royals Meet Twins on Road

(Democrat-Capital Service)

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Kansas City will send Paul Splitorff to the mound tonight and the Twins will counter with Jim Perry as the Royals and the Minnesota Twins open a rain-shortened series.

The clubs, who were to open a four-game series Monday, saw the series shortened to three games as the Memorial Day opener was rained out.

Splitorff has a 4-3 record; Perry is pitching .500 in decisions at 3-3. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. It will be televised on the Royals' television network.

Back in Time . . . Barely

Houston's Roger Metzger dives back into first base safely as Cincinnati first baseman Joe Hague stretches for the attempted pickoff in the first inning of Monday night's game in the Astrodome. Hague took the throw from catcher Johnny Bench. Cincinnati broke open a 3-3 deadlock with one in the seventh and four more in the ninth to capture an 8-3 win. (UPI)

Use of Foreign Car Presents a Problem

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Sandra Palmer was confronted with a peasant problem today as a result of her record-breaking 10-stroke victory Monday in the Titleholders Golf tournament.

In addition to a check for $3,000, green jacket and an eight-inch replica of the huge champion's crown, she won a year's use of a foreign sports coupe. Therein lies Sandra's problem. She is on the staff of an American car manufacturer.

The tiny Texan finished with a cozy one-over-par 72 on the 6,500 yard Pine Needles Country Club course after earlier rounds of 71-68-72. She broke by four shots the tournament record set seven years ago by Kathy Whitworth at Augusta, Ga., original home of the Titleholders.

Her 10-stroke margin was the biggest on the pro tour this year. She led all the way as she fought off one challenger after another. Her lead mounted from one stroke the first day to three the second, five the third and finally ten.

Mickey Wright, closing with 77, and Judy Rankin, with 76, tied for second at 293, each winning $2,032.

Defending champion Kathy Whitworth, whose 70 was the best fourth round score, and Marlene Hagge, who finished with 73, tied for fourth at 295 to win $1,337 each.

Stomper, Angus In Death Match

A Texas death match between The Stomper and Black Angus is tonight's main event on the professional wrestling program at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

Under conditions of the match, falls will not count, there will be no time limit and no disqualifications. The match will end when one wrestler cannot answer the bell or when one submits.

Danny Little Bear will team with midget Wee Willie Wilson in the semifinal event against Bill Howard and his midget partner Billy the Kid.

Natureboy Kirby and Omar Atlas will tangle in the special event, while the 8:30 p.m. opener finds Wilson and Kid meeting.

Brewers Hope New Manager Is the Key

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The brightest ray of sunshine in Milwaukee County Stadium is Del Crandall, whom the Milwaukee Brewers have selected as a replacement for field manager Dave Bristol.

Crandall, 42, called up from a managerial post in Evansville, Ind., checked in Monday while his new club was avenging a weekend of defeat with an 11-3 victory in Boston against the Red Sox.

Club president Allan H. Selig rousted Bristol out of bed Sunday with a pre-dawn announcement that he was being fired, but denied general manager Frank Lane had applied the pressure.

Lane's 10-player winter trade with the Red Sox had not put the Brewers in the winning column, and they had slumped to the American League's worst record.

Bristol displayed surprise at the announcement he received in Boston, but denied he had any grudges.

Crandall, a former all-star catcher, left the Milwaukee Braves in 1963 and has been manager of the Evansville minor-league club for more than a year.

In contrast to Bristol's iron-fist attitude toward exhausting drills and clubhouse training rules, Crandall radiated bliss as he checked in Monday.

"If I have any conviction about managing," he said, "it is that baseball should be fun; fun for the players and fun for the fans."

Montreal's Mike Marshall: He Thinks, So Therefore He Isn't

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Mike Marshall has had a whole mess of trouble in the big leagues. Jim Bouton, writing in "Ball Four," gave this reason:

"I'm afraid Mike's problem is that he's too intelligent and has had too much education. It's like in the Army. When a sergeant found out that a private had been to college he immediately assumed he couldn't be a good soldier. Right away it was, 'There's your college boy for you.' and 'I wonder what our genius has to say about that?' This is the kind of remark Sal (Maglie) and Joe (Schultz) make about Marshall."

Maglie, pitching coach for the then Seattle Pilots, and Schultz, manager, seem to have followed a philosophical pattern that most baseball people have nurtured toward poor, intelligence-ridden Mike Marshall.

But now, at least, he is being tolerated by the Montreal Expos, though he must surely be under constant surveillance. It's the way Solzhenitsyn watched by the Russian secret police. One false move and — pffft.

Pffft went Marshall when he was pitching for Detroit, and for Seattle, and for Houston.

Marshall currently has been getting hitters out as a relief pitcher and Expo Manager Gene Mauch seems to think — yes, think — that this outweighs any intellectual threat Marshall may pose.

The threat to Neanderthal baseball geniuses has not been simply that Marshall is nearing a Ph.D. in kinesiology, nor that he teaches structural analysis at Michigan State in off-season, nor that he developed a screwball by following Bernoulli's Principle, a law of fluids, which he could tell you is P+KE divided by V equals K.

No, the threat was greater. In Detroit, although he was the club's top reliever in 1967, he didn't make the squad the following season. "It was a direct result," Marshall says today, "of certain activities." Those activities included a move by the players to make him a subversive — that is, the player representative.

One Detroit scout, who asked to be nameless, recalled that Mike Marshall . . .

. . . Too Smart?

Mayo Smith, then the team manager, had called Marshall "that smart-aleck college guy."

Marshall was sent to Toledo and had a 1-9 record and was named right-handed pitcher of the year in the International League. Yet Detroit didn't protect him in the expansion draft. Seattle got him. Marshall immediately became suspicious at Seattle when he and Bouton were caught playing chess in the locker room. Pffft. Back to the minors, of course.

On the first day that Marshall was brought up to Houston, Harry Walker gave him a long briefing. Among the list of responsibilities, said Walker, was that everyone must use the Exergenie. Marshall refused. He said, in his soft-spoken, level way, that he had studied that exercise machine and found it not only useless but harmful.

"At no time does a baseball player use controlled tension with resistance—the fundamental idea of the Exergenie," said Marshall. "It's neurologically ridiculous."

The sword dropped after Marshall pitched all of five innings for Houston. He and his over-stuffed head returned to the International League.

He was back in the big leagues last season, and compiled 23 saves, second in the National League to Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh. His 66 appearances made him the third busiest pitcher in the league.

The 29-year-old reliever with the Kirk Douglas cleft in his chin has apparently found a baseball home for his screwy screwball and his screwball antics.

Some of those antics? Well—

— He trots in from the bullpen instead of walking in.

— He puts his cap on back first and then smooths the front of it over his forehead. One minor league manager told him that only "colored" players put it on that way; white players put the cap on front first.

— He has a misguided sense of values: "Baseball players are useless really, in the scheme of things. We just think we're important. Why do I play? I've thought of quitting several times. But I love the game. And I love the competition of playing with and against the best in the world. I'd play in the sandlots with them. For free."

— He believes that baseball players are adults and that a manager should not dictate their lives off the field. When Harry Walker first told him about Astro bed checks, about what to say to the press, about the Astro way of dressing and so on and on, Marshall finally asked: "And how many times a week may I kiss my wife?"

Pffft.

See No Disadvantage in Soviet Troop Cut

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt told the 15 NATO foreign ministers Tuesday that any agreement with the Russians to reduce troops in Europe "should not bring any military disadvantage for either side."

Brandt welcomed the results of President Nixon's visit to Moscow, saying that the "elimination of confrontation and, as President Nixon put it, turning confrontation to cooperation, can but have favorable effects for us all and therefore for the alliance."

The West German chancellor addressed the opening of the annual two-day spring meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign ministers. Earlier in the day, Secretary of State William P. Rogers met with Brandt and told him of Nixon's mission to Moscow, including his agreement with the Russians that the European security conference which Moscow has been urging should be divided into separate conferences on East-West cooperation and on troop reductions.

Brandt told the NATO ministers that a "security conference should serve to explore the paths of cooperation between East and West and in doing so should not ignore the military aspects." But he warned that any reduction of troops "should meet the requirement of the alliance's undiminished security, should not bring any military disadvantage for either side, and should thereby help to reduce the dangers of confrontation. Thus in both projects the concepts of security and detente are linked together."

It was not clear from this whether Brandt felt both cooperation and troop reductions should be handled at a single conference or separate meetings.

It remained to be seen whether the other Atlantic allies would accept the U.S. position favoring parallel European conferences—a big one concentrating on cooperation and a smaller one dealing with troop reductions and other military issues.

Rogers reported on the Moscow talks to Washington's three principal European allies Monday night at the four-power dinner traditionally held on the eve of the NATO meeting to discuss German problems.

U.S. officials said the secretary received a warm response from Foreign Ministers Walter Scheel of West Germany, Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain and Maurice Schumann of France. But informed sources said Schumann indicated the French government has not relaxed its opposition to any talks on troop reductions.

The Nixon administration feels that talks to achieve a balanced, mutual reduction of Communist and Western forces in Central Europe should be attended only by nations most directly affected—those members of NATO and the Warsaw Pact whose forces are confronting each other in that area.

The Americans feel the European conference on cooperation should be attended by all the European nations, plus the United States and Canada or some 35 nations.

There is general agreement within NATO that a carefully planned European security conference is desirable, but there are differences over what such a conference should discuss. Some of Washington's allies, notably the West Germans, have favored including troop reduction on the agenda of the all-European conference.

Rogers told newsmen the United States is prepared to begin preparations this fall for a Europe-wide conference in 1973.

U.S. officials said the American view is that preparations for negotiations on troop cuts should begin about the same time.

Four-Weeks Rest For AJ After Accident

HOUSTON (AP) — Race driver A. J. Foyt will be off his feet for at least four weeks, doctors at Methodist Hospital here told him after examining his second degree burns and dislocated left ankle.

Foyt was injured when he made a pit stop on his 86th lap of the 100-mile United States Auto Club race Sunday at DuQuoin, Ill. Officials said he was leading by 35 seconds, but apparently left the pit too fast, jerked the fuel hose, spraying the fuel into the cockpit of his car.

Foyt leaped from the car with his clothes ablaze and grabbed a fire extinguisher to help put out the flames.

Used Acupuncture In Skin Graft Try

NEW YORK (AP) — Physicians at Albert Einstein College of Medicine used acupuncture needles to anethestize a patient's legs for a skin graft last Friday, the college hospital reported Monday.

It was the first reported use of acupuncture on a patient in a U.S. hospital. Interest among American anesthetists in the ancient Chinese therapy had mounted since President Nixon's trip to China in February.

The 65-year-old patient, a Manhattan bank employe who was not identified, was said to be recovering comfortably after the relatively minor operation. A surgeon grafted skin from his right thigh to the bottom of his left foot.

The team that administered the needles was supervised by Dr. Louis R. Orkin, chairman of the college's department of anesthesiology.

Lofty Protest Against Vietnam

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War spent 14½ hours part way up the 1,080-foot KCMO television tower here Monday, then left as quickly as they had arrived.

The pair, identified as Gary Muffitt and Mike Rymus, left a banner saying "Stop the War Now" at the tower's 200-foot level, where they spent most of their time.

The young men gave the station a four-page letter deploring the Vientam war. Authorities were notified, but no effort was made to evict the men because of the potential danger to all involved.

Police Seeking Two Young Men

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — Police in Overland Park, Kan. say they are seeking two young men who allegedly abducted an elderly man and woman and forced the man to drive them away.

Police say the incident took place about 9:30 Monday night (near 75th and Metcalf). Police were looking for a black over red 1970 Ford with Missouri license plates.

An off-duty humane officer, Larry Rusk, saw the abduction. Police say the abductors were armed with a small knife.

Listens to Speech

American and British residents of Moscow are joined by two Muscovites, closest to the set, to watch President Nixon talk to 70 million Russians on prime time television Sunday. Nixon told the Soviet Union his summit in the Kremlin has brought America and the Soviet Union on the road to a new age in relations.

Humphrey and McGovern In Second Confrontation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern are heading into their second campaign confrontation in pivotal California still debating the issues of the first—welfare and the war.

Humphrey slapped at McGovern welfare proposals, McGovern at Humphrey's record on Vietnam policy as the two Democratic senators prepared to face each other in a nationally televised appearance.

And Minnesota's Humphrey sought to revive and take over a familiar issue by challenging McGovern to disclose how much money he is spending on the California presidential primary campaign.

There was irony in that, since it was McGovern who first made public his over-all campaign finances, and turned the topic into a major issue at the start of the primary season. That was in New Hampshire, when he was rated at best a long shot in the race.

Now it is McGovern versus Humphrey, head to head, for 271 Democratic presidential nominating votes in the California primary a week away.

Their campaign tone since Sunday night, when they appeared together in a national television interview, indicated the dispute might become even more heated as they met again.

The television appearances, billed as debates but actually joint interviews broadcast by the national television networks, have become centerpieces in the California campaign.

Humphrey planned two campaign appearances in Los Angeles today, then set aside time to prepare for the television appearance. McGovern scheduled a news conference on conversion of the economy to a peacetime basis and cleared his schedule to rest and get ready for the second round.

It will be broadcast on the National Braodcasting Co. program "Meet the Press," for an hour beginning at 9:30 p.m. EDT. The final McGovern-Humphrey matchup is scheduled Sunday, on the American Broadcasting Co.

Humphrey raised the finance question in Sacramento Monday, saying that "the selling of a president ought not to become a habit in this country."

The former vice president said his California primary campaign had cost $299,000 through May 22. That partial accounting did not cover the period after costly radio and television commercials began.

A McGovern spokesman, Kirby Jones, said the primary campaign budget for the South Dakota senator is $1.25 million.

Humphrey is known to be facing a financial squeeze in his California campaign, and McGovern is certain to outspend him by a wide margin.

In San Diego Monday, McGovern said Humphrey is a former defender of U.S. war policy in Vietnam who "now goes across this land posing as a convert to peace, and I don't intend to let him get away with it."

Humphrey, in Fresno, renewed his critique of McGovern's position on welfare. He said he favors a public service job program that would cost $6 billion and put one million unemployed people to work within a month.

"I'd rather put a million people to work at a cost of $6 billion than put 104 million people on welfare at a cost of $27 billion," Humphrey said.

McGovern has said he doesn't favor the latter plan, either, having introduced such a plan in the Senate only as a courtesy to the National Welfare Rights Organization.

McGovern instead has proposed an income supplement program that would provide flat payments of perhaps $1,000 a year to all Americans. Humphrey has assailed that, too. What it would cost is still in dispute.

As Humphrey addressed about 2,000 people in Citrus Heights, a Sacramento suburb, a man carrying a rifle was arrested nearby. The sheriff's office said the incident was not related to the Humphrey appearance, and that the man was questioned and released, although the rifle was held "for safekeeping."

YES!!!—If it's modern, comfortable living you want you've picked the right place to live. We like Sedalia and we're certain that you will too. It doesn't take long, living in a town like Sedalia, to learn to appreciate these little things in life. Sedalia has almost every religious faith represented so that you may worship in the church of your choice. Both public and parochial schools provide educational opportunities for everyone concerned. A new Junior High School facility will soon be open to even further boost the already present educational facilities we now have here. You'll find plenty of recreational activities available in the many Sedalia parks for both your summer and winter pleasure. Sedalia is fortunate in having excellent medical care through its Bothwell Hospital and its Children's Therapy Center. A fine police force and fire department, plus many other community interests, add up to a better life here. We're indeed proud of our town and we welcome the chance to meet new residents, as our friends and neighbors do.

the boss' promise

SERVICE:

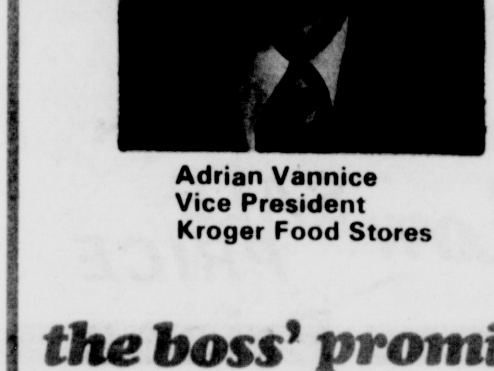
Another way to say "service" is taking better care of you. We're dedicated to that, and I promise you that we'll make every effort to get you through that check-out lane quickly and efficiently and with a minimum of delay.

If for any reason you feel that any part of my promise is not being fulfiled to you, I want to hear from you directly. Simply ask your Kroger store manager for my private number and call me.

We're dedicated to the proposition that there's always something extra in store for you at Kroger, and I want to follow through personally on my promise to see that you get it.

"Everything you have a right to expect . . . We'll do our level best to give you."

Adrian Vannice



FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE AND PERSONAL SATISFACTION . . .

We do all in our power to have all our Advertised Specials on our shelves when you shop for them. Sometimes, due to conditions beyond our control, we run out of an advertised special. If this should happen to you, ask at the store office for a RAIN CHECK which entitles you to the same advertised special at the same special price any time within 2 weeks.
